To dress well is an art, and all women are not artists, but to dress appropriately to the occasion is a possible acquirement for every one, and according to the old English proverb, "All is fine that is fit," a truly refined woman would rather follow than lead a fashion, and she is not well dressed who seems, herself, to be secondary to her clothes.—July Ladies' Home Journal.

WAR IN CHINA.

London, June 28, 1 a.m.—(Special)—
The situation in China is clearing slowly but surely. The losses and dangers of the foreigners at Tien Tsin are now known to have been grossly exaggerated by rumor mongers. There has been no massacre of foreigners, the casualties have been few and the damage to property slight. Despatches received from Shanghai and Che Fu agree in minimizing the perils to which the foreign quarter had been exposed, and a European who has reached the coast from Tien Tsin reports that there has been anxiety there, but no approach to panic.
The relief column which entered Tien Tsin on Saturday night met with little resistance, although the Russian losses are reported as four killed and 200 wounded, but the casualties of other detachments were very light.

Admiral Seymour's mixed force, which was retreating toward Tien Tsin, does not appear to have been in so desperate a plight as the earliest and most sensational despatches indicated and on Sunday it was only a three-hours' march from the city.
The details of the rescue of this force by a relief column 2,000 strong are still lacking, but the return of the entire body to Tien Tsin is a foregone conclusion. The safety of the foreign Legations and refugees is now assured. The foreigners, with their guards, were conducted out of the capital and placed under the protection of Admiral Seymour's force, which retired slowly toward Tien Tsin with sick and wounded. The column was harassed by Chinese mobs, and compelled to move slowly, but apart from the difficulty of securing supplies it does not appear to have been in serious danger, much less in great extremity.

WAR IN AFRICA.

Pretoria, June 27.—After making a record trip up the country, reaching General Buller's force in time to do service, for which they received special mention in official despatches, Strathcona's Horse have again distinguished themselves by blowing up the railway bridge at Komatiport, on the poort, and have cut off all communication of the Boers with the sea.

All the Delagoa Bay Railway rolling stock, the Boer artillery, and the whole Boer army, including the gold taken by President Kruger from the mint here, are west of that break, and must now inevitably fall into British hands.

Strathcona's Horse has effectually bottled up the Boers.

London, June 28, 4.20 a.m.—Gen. Sir Leslie Rundle had a sharp artillery and rifle skirmish near Senekal Friday with a large force of entrenched Boers. He declined to attack them. This is the only fresh fighting reported.

The Boer outposts northeast of Pretoria are busy. The telegraph wires between Standerton and Newcastle were cut Sunday, and Sir Redvers Buller had to report to the telegraph.

Commandant Dewet, with 3,000 men and three guns, is moving north in the Orange River Colony. It is understood that he and commandant-General Botha entered into a compact that neither would surrender so long as the other was in the field.

Twelve hundred rifles all told have been surrendered to the British. President Kruger is still at Machadodorp.

The exposures regarding the hospitals in South Africa have made a great sensation in England. They began with three columns of restrained language in The Times yesterday from Mr. W. A. Burdett Coutts, Conservative member for Westminster. His disclosures have been widely reproduced, and they were supplemented this morning with denunciatory telegrams and interviews from survivors and army medical men.

A. S. Kimmerly has a car of berry boxes, and can supply all demands at bottom prices, we sell pure Paris Green cheaper than all dealers. Machine oil, 30c. per gal.; Canned vegetables, 3 for 25c.; good flour, $1.50 per 100; bran and shorts in stock, 10 lbs. rolled oats, 25c.

THE GORDONS' REVENGE.

SCOTIA'S SONS GET THEIR TURN AT THE BOERS.

Brilliant Battle Picture by Hales, the Australian War Correspondent, of the Highlanders' Bayonet Charge at Thabanchu.

A. G. Hales, in a letter to the London Daily News from Thabanchu gives the following remarkable description:—

When, a few months ago, I stood upon the veldt, almost within the shadow of the frowning brow of Magersfontein's surly heights, and looked upon the cold, stern faces of Scotland's dead, and listened to the weird wailing of the bagpipes, whilst Cronje gazed triumphantly down from his inaccessible mountain stronghold upon his handiwork, I knew in my soul that a day would dawn when Scotland would demand an eye for an eye, blood for blood. I read it written on the faces of the men who strode with martial tread round the last sad resting place of him they loved—their chief, the dauntless General Wauchope. Vengeance spoke in the sombre fire that blazed in every Scotchman's eye. Retribution was carved large and deep on every hard-set Scottish face; it spoke in silent eloquence in the grip of each hard browned hand on rifle barrels; it found a mute echo in each knitted brow, and leapt to life in every deepdrawn breath; it sparkled in each tear that rolled unheeded and unchecked down war-scarred cheeks, and thundered in the echo of the men's tread across the veldt right up to Cronje's lines, as they marched campwards. The Highland Brigade had gazed upon its dead, and neither time, nor change, nor thought of home or wife, of hissing babe, would wipe the memory of that sight away until the bayonets' ruthless thrust gave Scotland quittance in the rich, red blood of those who did that deed.

That hour has come. The men who sleep in soldiers' graves beside the willow-clad banks of the Modder River have been avenged. Or, if the debt has not been paid in full, the interest owing on that bond of blood has at least now been handed in. It was not paid by our colonial sons; not from Australian or Canadian hands did the stubborn Boers receive the debt we owed. They were not Irish hearts that cleared old Scotland's legacy of hate on that May day amidst the African hills. It was not England's yeoman sons who did that deed, but men whose feet were native to the heather, men on whose tongues the Scottish burr clung lovingly—the bare-legged, killed "boys" whom the lasses in the Highlands love, the gallant Gordons.

Let the tale be told in Edinburgh Town; let it ring along the Border; let the lass as she braids the widow's hair whisper the story with love-kissed breath; let the lads as they come from their daily toil throw out their chests for the sake of their breeding; let the pessimist turn up the faded page of history, written when the world was young, and find, if he can, a grander deed done by the sons of men since the morning stars sang together.

grave of gallant young Huddart, an Australian "middy" who lay buried on the veldt, but the Boers collected that portrait from me later on, worse luck. On this fateful day Captain Towse, with about fifty of the Gordons got isolated from the main body of British troops, and the Boers, with that marvellous dexterity for which they are becoming famous, sized up the position, and determined upon a capture. They little dreamt of the nature of the lion they had snared in their toils. With fully two hundred and fifty men they closed in on the little band of kilted men, and in triumphant tones called upon them to throw down their arms and surrender. It was a picture to warm an artist's heart. On all sides rose the bleak, black kopjes, ridge on ridge, as inhospitable as a watch-dog's growl. On one hand the little band of Highlanders, the picturesque colours of their clan showing in kilt and stocking, perfect in all their appointments, but nowhere so absolutely flawless as in their leadership. Under such leaders as he who held them there so calm and steady, their forebears had hurled back the chivalry of France and had tamed the Muscovite pride, and they were soon to prove themselves men worthy of their captain.

On the other side rose the superior numbers of the Boers. A wild and motley crew they looked compared to the gem of Britain's army. Boys stood side by side with old men; lads braced themselves shoulder to shoulder with men in their manhood's prime, ragged beards fell on still more ragged shirt fronts. But there were many hearts behind those ragged garments, hearts that beat high with love of home and country, hearts that seldom quailed in the hour of peril. Their rifles lay in hands steady and strong. The Boer was face to face with the Briton; the numbers lay on the side of the Boer, but the bayonet was with the Briton.

"CHARGE GORDONS! CHARGE!"

"Throw up your hands and surrender." The language was English, but the accent was Dutch. A moment, an awful second of time, the rifle barrels gleamed coldly towards that little group of men, who stood their ground as pine trees stand on their mountain sides in Bonnie Scotland. Then out on the African air there rang a voice, proud, clear, and high as clarion note, "Fix bayonets, Gordons!" Like lightning the strong hands gripped the ready steel; the bayonets went home to the barrel him to go through life in darkness and they mourned for him as they had mourned for noble, white-souled Wauchope, whose prototype he was. They knew that many a long, long year would roll away before their eyes would rest upon his like again in camp or bloody field. But it gladdened their stern warrior hearts to know that the last sight he ever gazed upon was Scotland sweeping on her foes.

And when our noble Queen shall place upon his breast the cross which is the soldier's diadem, their hearts will throb in unison with his, for their strong hands on that May day helped him to win what he is so fit to wear; and when our Sovereign honours him she honours them, and well they know it. And when the years have rolled away, and they are old and grey, and spent with wounds and toil, fit for nothing but to dandle little grandbabes on their knees, young men and maids will flock around, and pointing out the veteran to the curious stranger say with honest pride, "He was with Towse the day he won the cross."

HAS LOST ITS CRATER.

The Mass in the Centre of Vesuvius has Sunk, Thus Preventing Another Disaster Like Pompeii.

The fiery crater of Vesuvius, after erupting enormous masses of lava and stones for a month past, became quiet all of a sudden. It was then noticed that its tall conical crater had disappeared.

The discovery that the cone had disappeared created the liveliest interest among the scientists of Naples. Several of whom, together with a few from Rome, ventured the ascent for the purpose of scientific investigation.

The cone had become engulfed.

Several theories have been propounded as to how the eruption of lava, ashes and stone ceased at a time when the output was strongest, and also with regard to the disappearance of the cone.

It is generally believed that this display of nature's fire-works ceased on account of the sinking of the molten mass within, a providential occurrence.

Had it not been for this there might have been an eruption that would have destroyed Naples like that which buried Pompeii in 79 A.D.

Now that the mountain is again quiet, the people of the villages of Portici and Resina, who had left their homesteads in fear and fright, have returned, and are taking great interest in the scientific investigations. They are assisting the learned men by searching for stones thrown from the crater.

Vesuvius for weeks presented an impressive spectacle. About the summit of the dark mountain white smoke could be seen making its way a thousand yards high.

Explosions were continually heard even at Naples. The mathematicians have been at work, and they have ascertained by laborious trigonometric calculations that masses of lava were hurled 15,000 feet, or three miles high.

The convulsions shook the Seismic Observatory on the mountains, and

A SOUTHERN CAKE.

It takes an intelligent cook to a new dish well. Cooks of the order cook only what they like to cook in their early years, and they cook only in a purely imitative and mechanical way. Chinese are of the latter sort. The well known of the Chinese cook was being taught by a bright v to make a certain cake which cost one egg. The first egg which lady opened was not fresh enough suit her taste, and she threw it into the waste-basket. After the Chinaman, who had carefully watched her, always made the cake well the first egg opened he always into the waste-basket.

A correspondent tells of the culties which a Northern lady, had moved South, had in teaching negro servants there to cook dishes she liked. The blacks cook well enough, but in their own markable way only. Material side their familiar Southern cooking they could not handle at all.

Finally the lady found a man cook who had been to school could read. "Now," she said, "a man who can cook by receipt. She gave him a receipt for a cake, written plainly on a scrap of paper. It was for a white cake when the cake came on the table was of a singular golden color. lady called the cook.

"Did you make this cake according to the receipt?" she asked.

"Oh yes, mum."

"Did you put in all the eggs?"

"Oh yes, mum."

"Put in everything?"

"Yes, mum—the vinegar, to mustard and pepper."

"Vinegar and mustard!" exclaimed the lady. "What do you mean? Putting vinegar and mustard in cake?"

Then the man brought the cake. On the back of the slip of paper written a receipt for salad and the intelligent servant had everything he found on both sides the paper!

The lady's husband took a piece of the cake and tasted it. "It is good, and it tastes good," he said, "it's the best cake I've ever eaten in this house!"

THE NEW HANDSHAKE

The new way of shaking hands

Let the tale be told in Edinburgh Town; let it ring along the Border; let the lass as she braids the widow's hair whisper the story with love-kissed breath; let the lads as they come from their daily toil throw out their cheers for the sake of their breeding; let the pessimist turn up the faded page of history, written when the world was young, and find, if he can, a grander deed done by the sons of men since the morning stars sang together.

BAITING THE BOER WEASEL.

So to my tale. It was the 1st of May. We had the Boers hard pressed in Thabancha in a run of kopjes that reached in almost unbroken sequence farther than a man's eye might reach. The flying French was with us, chafing like a leashed greyhound because he could not sweep all before him with one impetuous rush. Rundle, too, was here, with his haughty, handsome face, as keen as French, but with a better grip on his feelings. Six thousand of the foe, under Louis Botha, cool, crafty, long-headed, resourceful, have held the kopjes. Again and again we manoeuvred to trap them but no wolf in winter is more wary than Botha, no weasels more watchful than the men he commanded. When we advanced they fell back, when we fell back they advanced, until the merest tyro in the art of war could see that a frontal attack unless made in almost hopeless positions was impossible. So Hamilton swept round their right flank, ten miles north of Thabanchu, and gave them a taste of his skill and daring, whilst Rundle held their main body here at Thabanchu. Rundle made a feint on their centre in strong force, and they closed in from both flanks to resist him. Then he drew off as if fearing the issue. This drew the Boers in, and they pounded our camp with shells until one wondered whether the German-made rubbish they used would last them much longer. Then we threatened their left flank quickly and sharply, giving Hamilton time to strike on their right, and he struck without erring, whipping the enemy at every point he touched, driving them out of their positions, and holding them firmly himself, so threatening their rear and the immense herds of sheep and oxen they have with them, making a footing for the British to move on and cut Botha off from his base at Krönstadt.

THE GORDONS SURROUNDED.

Whether he will now stand his ground and fight or make a break for the main army of the Boers is hard to calculate, for the Boer generally does just what no one expects he will attempt to do. It was during Hamilton's flanking effort that the Gordons vindicated their character for courage. Captain Towse, a brave, courteous soldier and gentleman, whom I had the pleasure of meeting at Graspan, and whose guest I had been on several occasions, was the hero of the hour. He is a fine figure of a man, well set up, good-looking, strong, active. He was, I think, about the only soldier, I have seen who could wear an eyeglass and not lose by it. In age he looked about forty. I remember snapping a photo of him as he was "tidying up" the

"Throw up your hands and surrender." The language was English, but the accent was Dutch. A moment, an awful second of time, the rifle barrels gleamed coldly towards that little group of men, who stood their ground as pine trees stand on their mountain sides in Bonnie Scotland. Then out on the African air there rang a voice, proud, clear, and high as clarion note, "Fix bayonets, Gordons!" Like lightning the strong hands gripped the ready steel; the bayonets went home to the barrel as the lips of lover to lover. Rifles spoke from the Boer lines, and men reeled a pace from the British and fell, and lay where they fell. Again that voice with the Scottish burr on every note, "Charge, Gordons! Charge!" and the dauntless Scotchman rushed on at the head of his fiery few. The Boer's heart is a brave heart, and he who calls them cowards lies; but never before had they faced so grim a charge, never before had they seen a torrent of steel advancing on their lines in front of a tornado of flesh and blood. On rushed the Scots, on over fallen comrades, on over rocks and cliffs, on to the ranks of the foe, and onward through them, sweeping them down as I have seen wild horses sweep through a field of ripening corn. The bayonets hissed as they crashed through breastbone and backbone. Vainly the Boer clubbed his rifle and smote back. As well might the wild goat strike with puny hoofs when the tiger springs. Nothing could stay the fury of that desperate rush. Do you sneer at the Boers? Then sneer at half the armies of Europe, for never yet have Scotland's sons been driven back when once they reached a foe to smite.

How do they charge, these bare-legged sons of Scotia? Go ask the hills of Afghanistan, and if there be tongues within them they will tell you that they sweep like hosts from hell. Ask in sneering Paris, and the red records of Waterloo will give you answer. Ask in St. Petersburg, and from Sebastopol your answer will come. They thought of the dreary morning hours of Magersfontein, and they smote the steel downwards through the neck into the liver. They thought of the row of comrades in the graves beside the Modder, and they gave the Boers the "haymaker's lift," and tossed the dead body behind them. They thought of gallant Wauchope riddled with lead, and they sent the cold steel, with a horrible crash, through skull and brain, leaving the face a thing to make friends shudder. They thought of Scotland, and they sent the wild slogan of their clan re-echoing through the gullies of the African hills, until their comrades far away along the line, hearing it, turned to one another, saying: "God help the Boers." This hour, our Jocks are into 'em with the bay'nit!

THE CRUEL PRICE OF IT.

But when they turned to gather up those who had fallen, then they found that he whose lion soul had pointed them the crimson path to duty was to lead them no more. The noble heart that beat so true to honour's highest notes, was not stilled, but a bullet missing the brain had closed his eyes for ever to God's sunlight, leaving crater.

Vesuvius for weeks presented an impressive spectacle. About the summit of the dark mountain white smoke could be seen making its way a thousand yards high.

Explosions were continually heard even at Naples. The mathematicians have been at work, and they have ascertained by laborious trigonometric calculations that masses of lava were hurled 15,000 feet, or three miles high.

The convulsions shook the Seismic Observatory on the mountains, and the villagers were in a state of terror. They were afraid to stay in their homes; they did not like the eerie, weird rattling of the window panes.

Naturally there is a great rush of tourists to witness the fiery displays at close quarters, but ardent sight-seers were doomed to disappointment, for the police were active, and rigorously prevented anyone venturing beyond Cook's railway, near the Observatory.

The scene was awe-inspiring at night-time, when the belchings were most frequent. Imagine the immense plain round the craters transformed into a fiery sea, illuminating with a red glare the neighboring villages, the heavens above and even the distant ocean, emitting, rocket-like, myriads of brilliant sparks, and you have some sort of notion of what the sight was like.

VIOLENT DEATHS.

They Terminated the Careers of Numerous Scotch Sovereigns.

Taking the reign of Duncan as the beginning of authentic Scotch history 14 sovereigns out of the 25 before the union of the crown with England, died violent deaths. Duncan, who began to reign in 1034, was murdered by Marbeth, who was in turn murdered by his successor, Malcolm Canmore, placed by some as the first real King of Scotland. Malcolm was slain while besieging Alnwick; Duncan II. was murdered; Alexander II. died of fatigue and worry while mustering his fleet at Oban; Alexander III. fell over the cliffs at Kinghorn; Margaret the Maid of Norway was drowned at sea; Robert III. died of a broken heart; James I. was murdered by his subjects; James II. was killed by a cannon bursting at Roxburgh; James III. was stabbed by an assassin after the battle of Sauchieburn; James IV. was killed by the English at the battle of Flodden; James V. died of exhaustion and fever after the battle of Fala Moss and Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded in 1587. Scottish annals before the time of Macbeth, 1039, are conflicting in character, and historians regard them as in great measure legendary. The evidence of the early chronicles suggests the strong probability that a large number of the earlier Scotch sovereigns met with violent deaths. From the reign of Eugenius I., who in 347 was slain in battle by Maximus the Roman General, no fewer than 22 out of 40 are said to have died by violence in the various forms of assassination—drowning, poisoning or suicide.

PROVED TOO MUCH.

The troubles of housekeepers with their "helps" are endless, and many that actually happen are quite as funny as those that find their way into print through the active imaginations of the gifted young men who write for the comic journals.

The mistress of an establishment went into the kitchen one morning to see how her new cook was getting along.

There was a wash-basin in the sink, half-full of water, and a cake of soap was floating in it.

"This is wasteful, Keturah," she said. "When you wash your hands, always take out the soap and empty the water."

"I haven't used that wash-pan at all to-day, ma'am!" replied Keturah, indignantly.

The next day Keturah was hunting for a new situation.

INDIAN FAMINE PROBLEM.
 A Few Words of Sympathy For the Government.

If it were not for the imperviousness of the British to foreign criticism they would have become discouraged before this over their Indian problem says the Detroit News. They are providing work for 8,000,000 of their starving country subjects in that famine stricken country at a cost of $400,000 a day, besides what is being done by private charity, and yet they are assailed on all sides as if they are responsible for the famine.
 They might retort that they are taking the money of the people of England, Ireland and Scotland, and spending it on a thankless race in India, where they are carrying on the most stupendous charitable work in the history of the world; but they leave the story to be told later by a dry blue book which no one is likely to read except, perhaps, the historian.
 They are accused of taxing the natives to death, and they do not stop to point out that the money raised in India is spent in India, and spent honestly for the good of the people.
 There has never been a scandal in the civil service of India since Britain took hold of it nearly half a century ago. The taxes are lower than ever they were before, and the population is greater by far than ever it was. It is estimated that over 180,000,000 have been added to the population during the present century. The central and southern provinces are overcrowded, and the people cannot be induced to move to the north-west, where there is still plenty of land. It is the greatest problem that confront ed any people, and the British are trying to solve it in their own way, paying no attention to what others may think of their methods.

BULLER JOINS ROBERTS

The Former's Cavalry Have Taken Standerton Without Opposition.

A despatch from London, says:—The following cable from Lord Roberts was received to-day;

Pretoria, June 22.—Ian Hamilton's column reached the Springs yesterday, en route to Heidelberg, where they will join hands with Buller's troops, who reached Paardekop yesterday, and will be at Standerton to-morrow, thus opening up communication between Pretoria and Natal, and preventing any joint action between the Transvaalers and the people of the Orange River Colony.

"Baden-Powell reports from Rustenburg that he found the leading Boers very pacific and cordial on his return journey hence. Commandant Steyn and two actively hostile field cornets had been captured during his absence.

"Lord Edward Cecil, the administrator of the Rustenburg district, has to-date collected 3,000 rifles.

"The commissioner at Kroonstad reports that 341 rifles have been handed in at Wolmaranstad."

BULLER'S CAVALRY AT STANDERTON.

Gen. Dundonald, with the Third Cavalry brigade, occupied Standerton to-day without opposition. The burghers left yesterday, after having blown up the railroad bridge and doing other damage.

The infantry marched 22 miles to-day, and camped at Kaatsbosch spruit to-night.

SURROUNDED THE CAVALRY.

Narrow Escape of General French's Forces From Capture.

A despatch from Pretoria, says:—On Tuesday last, there was very hard fighting on both flanks of the Boer position, and their centre was almost impregnable. Gen. French went to the left, and entered a section of the country that was unsuitable for cavalry manoeuvres. His force was surrounded, and sustained a heavy cross-fire. They made a splendid fight, however, and the Boers retreated just as the artillery ammunition was exhausted.

Hamilton's division advanced on the right, and Gen. Broadwoods' brigade became involved rather seriously. While advancing between high kopjes against the Boers in their front they were surprised by a close cross-fire from snipers in a mealie field, and on surrounding kopjes. The number of Boers increased rapidly, and their rifle fire caused much damage among the artillery horse.

The Boers advanced over a rise in the ground for 500 or 600 yards, but were checked by artillery fire. Then the 12th Lancers on the right made a frontal charge, while the Household Cavalry went to the right and cleared the mealie field.

It was in this fight that the Earl of Airlie was killed. After it was over he was found with a bullet through his heart. Col. Egerton Green was wounded in the thigh, and taken prisoner. He has been heard of since as doing well. There were very few casualties among the British, considering the short range at which the fighting took place.

No Transvaalers took part in the engagement. The entire force that opposed the British was made up of Hollanders who have settled in the Transvaal, colonial rebels, and foreign mercenaries. During the engagement two of the British guns were firing towards the front and two others towards the rear.

HUTTON CAPTURES GUNS.

Lord Methuen Routs a Column Under DeWet.

A despatch from London, says:—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts:—"Pretoria, Wednesday.—Hunter's advance column occupied Krugersdorp without opposition.

"Methuen, who was escorting a large convoy to Heilbron, Tuesday routed a force under Christian De Wet, who endeavoured to prevent him from entering the little town. Methuen had only three casualties.

"Baden-Powell left this city on Wednesday on his return to Rusten-

ANXIETY AS TO PEKIN.

Absence of News Causes the Most Acute Suspense.

A despatch from London, Saturday, says:—A despatch to the Times from Shanghai, says there is acute suspense there concerning Pekin. Chang-I-Tung is sending more troops for the protection of the Labuan line, and also to the Province of Hupei.

A despatch forwarded by one of the Consuls at Chefoo Friday quotes an urgent message that was sent by the British Consul at Tienoo-Tsin Wednesday, by a special runner to Tong-Ku. It says:—

"Reinforcements are most urgently

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

INDIAN FAMINE FUND.

Sir Charles Tupper asked if the Government had yet given any consideration to the proposal of making a contribution from the Dominion treasury to the Indian Famine Fund.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the Government was not yet prepared to make any announcement on the subject, but would do so at an early date.

YUKON REPRESENTATION.

Sir Charles Tupper brought up the question of the representation of the Yukon District in the House of Commons. He read the petition of the inhabitants of the district, which set forth that they paid 1.25 of the gross revenue of the Dominion, and that the representation which they asked for was necessary in order that, in important questions relating to the Yukon, they might be properly represented and thoroughly understood. They, therefore, asked to be represented in the House by two members. He was glad that the Government proposed to put into force by proclamation the Act of last session which gave to the inhabitants of the Yukon two elective members on the Territorial Council.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought that it was well not to proceed hastily in such a matter. Last year Parliament had decided to give the people of the Yukon representation in their Territorial Council and this representation would be accorded to them by the first of July next. In his opinion, there was no necessity for taking any further steps at present. The question of having them represented in Parliament could wait until after the census of next year. As to the request of the people of the Yukon for two members, he thought that would be more than the proportion allowed to the provinces. By allowing the people to elect representatives to the Territorial Council on a basis of a manhood franchise much valuable experience would be gained, and a judgment could then be formed, both as to how many members they should send to the House of Commons, and as to what franchise should be enforced. The motion was lost.

BRITISH COLUMBIA POLITICS.

Mr. Morrison asked if, having regard to the unsettled condition of local political affairs in British Columbia, any steps were being taken by the Government to the establishment of a stable state of affairs in the Province, and if there was any announcement to be made with regard to the rumors that are current with respect to the Government.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the matter is at present engaging the attention of the Government. He had been under the impression he could make an announcement, but was sorry he could not do so at that moment.

NEWS OF THE SOLDIERS.

Mr. Monk complained of the difficulties in obtaining information about the condition of a soldier named Bamford of Montreal, invalided to Shornecliffe provisional camp. Dr. Borden promised to give any informalowances of members of the Council are as follows:—Comm. Ogilvie, $6,000 salary and $1,000 expenses; Mr. Girouard, registrar and $100 a month; Judge Dugas and $100 per month; Mr. Clemm and $100 per month; Gold signor Senkler, $5,000 and $1,000 per month; Mr. Perry, superintendent Mounted Police, $1,400 and $2 extra while he resides at Dawson $1.25 per day living allowance.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. Morrison asked whether he had taken advantage of or come a party to article 18 of the treaty of Commerce and Navigation between Great Britain and Canada, which was signed in London 16th, 1894.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the Government had decided not to come a party to the treaty, but doing so it would be precluded making other arrangements might be more to the advantage of Canada.

BRITISH COLUMBIA AFFAIRS.

Speaker Bain announced that the seat of Mr. E. Bernier had become vacant, a gentleman having accepted a of emolument under the Crown. Sir Wilfrid Laurier then said the following:—

"I have the honour to inform the House that, for reasons which are known to the public, but which I have not officially communicated to the House, under section 59 of the British America Act, it has pleased his Excellency the Governor-General to the Hon. Thomas R. McInn the office of Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of British Columbia. He has also pleased his Excellency the Governor-General to appoint Sir Henri Gustave Joly de Lotbiniere as Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of British Columbia. It has also pleased his Excellency the Governor-General to appoint the Hon. Michael Esdras Bernier, then for the electoral division of the fifth, a member of the Privy Council, and Minister of Revenue."

CANADIANS WERE CUT OFF.

Two Killed, Five Wounded, Three Captured.

A despatch from London, says:—Lord Roberts' six columns converging, apparently, so as to surround the Free Staters, although decisive results cannot be expected for several days. A number of men who were supposed to be within the wide-flung net, have broken, or been stolen, through Gen. Ficksburg-Senekal lines.

The Canadians were engaged in a honing spruit fight last Friday. De Wet's men first cut off a C outpost of mounted rifles a two being killed, Lieut. Ing four others being wounded, and being captured. The Free Staters then attacked the camp, where 50 Canadians and two companies Shropshires, though with no effect, as the men were well entrenched.

The foreign military attack were with Lord Roberts are at Cape Town, en route for Eui-

A despatch from London, says:—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts:—"Pretoria, Wednesday.—Hunter's advance column occupied Kruigersdorp without opposition.

"Methuen, who was escorting a large convoy to Heilbron, Tuesday, routed a force under Christian De Wet, who endeavoured to prevent him from entering the little town. Methuen had only three casualties.

"Baden-Powell left this city on Wednesday on his return to Rustenburg. The country is quieting down in that direction.

"This satisfactory state of affairs will be materially assisted by the capture between here and Rustenburg, on Tuesday, of two guns, by Hutton's mounted infantry, from a body of the enemy under Commandant Duplessis.

"Railway and telegraph communication with Cape Town is now completely restored.

"All is quiet here and at Johannesburg. The shops are open, and the market is daily becoming more crowded and businesslike."

GOVERNOR WAS WOUNDED.

Eight Officers Killed in a Sortie From Kumassi.

A despatch from Accra, says:—Sir Frederick Hodgson, Governor of the Gold Coast Colony, according to reports from Kumassi, was wounded in the shoulder during a recent sortie from the fort. It is also rumored that eight officers were killed.

Provisions at Kumassi are scarce, and there are many wounded. The investment is complete. No one is able to leave. Great privations are endured by the native population. Day by day the position is becoming more precarious, and there are no prospects of relief.

A COMMANDO SURRENDERS.

De Villier's 220 Men Give Themselves Up to Gen. Warren.

A despatch from London, Monday, says:—There is little news from South Africa beyond that contained in the official despatches. No further important movement is reported.

A telegram from Cape Town states that De Villier's commando, numbering 220 men, with 280 horses, 18 wagons, 260 rifles, and 10,000 rounds of ammunition, has surrendered to General Warren at Blikfontein. Commandant De Villier himself did not surrender.

THE WHEAT FAILURE.

The Situation of the U. S. Belt a National Calamity.

A despatch from Chicago, says:—The Times-Herald publishes a crop report prepared by Snow, the crop expert, who has just completed a two weeks' trip through the States of Minnesota, North and South Dakota. He declares the situation a national calamity, and claims the wheat failure the worst winter known. He estimates the crop at Kansas as promising only 20,000,000 bushels each, and Minnesota 35,000,000 bushels, a total of 75,000,000 bushels, against 200,000,000 bushels last year, and 300,000,000 bushels in 1898.

A despatch from London, Saturday, says:—A despatch to the Times from Shanghai, says there is acute suspense there concerning Pekin. Chang-I-Tung is sending more troops for the protection of the Lohuan line, and also to the Province of Hupai.

A despatch forwarded by one of the Consuls at Chefoo Friday quotes an urgent message that was sent by the British Consul at Tienoo-Tsin Wednesday, by a special runner to Tong-Ku. It says:—

"Reinforcements are most urgently needed. The casualties have been heavy, and the ammunition supply is insufficient. Machine or field guns are required. Beware of an ambush-cade near Tien-Tsin. Rumour states that Lieut. White has been severely wounded. The Russians at the railroad station are hard pressed. The Chinese troops maintain an incessant fire with large guns on the concession."

The Daily Express says:—"We understand that Mr. A. Tower, secretary of the British Embassy in Washington, is to succeed Sir Claude Macdonald, and that the reason of Sir Claude's recall is the breakdown of his health."

Sheng, director-general of telegraphs, wires from Shanghai to the Chinese Legation in Europe that the foreign Legations at Pekin are safe.

It is expected the Government will send at once 11,000 men to China, and possibly, according to some of the morning papers, 10,000 of the regulars now with Lord Roberts.

FOUR DAYS' ARMSITICE

Botha Wanted it Made General, But Roberts Refused.

A despatch from London, Saturday, says:—The news from South Africa, so far as the development of the military situation is concerned, is covered by the official despatches. Gen. Roberts and Buller have practically joined hands, completely severing the northern and southern bodies of the Boers. Strathcona's Horse, 500 strong, have joined Gen. Buller. They will considerably increase his mobility.

The Standard's Pretoria correspondent states that Gen. Louis Botha, after his retreat from Diamond hill, requested an armistice. Gen. Roberts agreed to suspend hostilities north and west of Pretoria, but Gen. Botha demanded a cessation of all military movements. Gen. Roberts replied that it was impossible to stop the machinery of his army; several columns that were moving about the country with only limited supplies could not be halted. Gen. Botha then withdrew his request. Nevertheless, a practical armistice north and west of Pretoria was observed for four days.

RAILWAY MEN EXPELLED.

British Turn Out Foreign Sympathisers With the Boers.

A despatch from Amsterdam, says:—The Netherlands Railroad company of South Africa has received official notification of the expulsion from the Transvaal of 1,400 of its employees with their families.

The Dutch Consul at Lorenzo Marques telegraphs that a proclamation has been issued to the effect that the company's officials who refuse to do British military transport work will be sent to Europe via East London, Cape Colony.

to the Government.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the matter is at present engaging the attention of the Government. He had been under the impression he could make an announcement, but was sorry he could not do so at that moment.

NEWS OF THE SOLDIERS.

Mr. Monk complained of the difficulties in obtaining information about the condition of a soldier named Bamford of Montreal, invalided to Shornecliffe provisional camp. Dr. Borden promised to give any information that came in.

Mr. Clarke Wallace referred to the case of John Hewitt of Toronto, who is seeking information regarding his son.

The Minister of Militia explained that every item of information the War Office had about the Canadian contingent was sent here promptly, and in addition the department had frequent reports from Lieut.-Col. Otter. The department had done everything in its power to obtain information about the wounded. He himself had not had word, direct or indirect, from his son since April 14th, and a great many other parents were in the same position.

TAXATION OF C. P. R. LANDS.

Mr. Richardson, of Lisgar, raised the question of the taxation of Canadian Pacific Railway lands. According to the agreement made with the railway company, these lands are exempt from taxation for a period of 20 years. His motion was to the effect that, in the opinion of the House, the 20 years dated from the time of the passing of the Canadian Pacific Railway bill, and would therefore expire February 16th, 1901. As a corollary to this he asked that all such lands should be patented prior to that date, because they could not be taxed until patented.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that the position of the hon. member was entirely untenable. Mr. Richardson contended that the 20 years' exemption should count from the day of the passage of the bill, but under the terms of the company until earned by subsidies did not become the property of the company until it was carried by construction. It was not the property of the company at the time of the adoption of the contract in 1881. He admitted the conditions pressed hardly upon the settler by increasing his land taxation, but there was no help for it. The Crown had entered into a solemn contract with the C.P.R., ratified by the representatives of the people, and Parliament could not in good faith interfere with that bargain. If Mr. Richardson was right in his opinion that the exemption from taxation ceased on the 16th of February, 1901, it was then within the privilege of the municipalities to tax the land and carry their contention into the courts. Again, there were bonds issued on this land to the extent of five millions of dollars. These bonds were in the hands of individual holders, and the faith of the Government of Canada was pledged to them. Vested interests could not be legally disregarded. The remedy was with the courts. The proposition was one which could not be entertained for a moment.

It is evident similar request has gone to the colonies, and it is thought preliminary to a transfer of some troops from South Africa.

Lord Roberts Also Reports Two Other Skirmishes.

A despatch from London, Monday, says:—The War Office has received the following cable from Lord Roberts in the following message to the War Office:—

"Pretoria, Sunday, 11.30 a.m.—Bul- ler reached Standerton, June 22. He found a good deal of rolling stock. All the Dutch residents had left the town.

"The British prisoners captured since our occupation of Pretoria have been taken to Machadodorp.

"Ian Hamilton occupied Heidelberg Saturday. The enemy fled, pursued by our mounted men six or seven miles.

"The previous day, Broadwood's cavalry had a skirmish with the en- emy, dispersing them completely and capturing six.

"Hunter's advance brigade reached J. hanne burg toward Heidelberg June 22.

"The enemy attacked our post at Honing spruit, and before reinforc- ments arrived from Kroonstad they had burned three culverts. These had all been repaired by this afternoon."

A Reuter despatch from Cape Town dated yesterday, says:—"The British casualties at Honing spruit were 375 killed and wounded."

In a despatch dated Standerton, June 24, Gen Buller confirms the re- port that 461 men of the Thirteenth Yeomanry and 180 Highlanders were captured with a convoy near Heil- bron. They passed through Stand- erton on June 18. A few of them, in- cluding Lord Londford, were severe- ly wounded. These were left at Reitz. The despatch gives the names of other sick troops found at Stan- derton, and adds that the bulk of the prisoners, including Lord Leitrim and Lord Ennismore, were well.

A despatch from Shanghai of to- day's date says that the Chinese troops who are attacking Tien-Tsin are commanded in person by Prince Tuan, the new head of the Tsung-li Yamen. It is also reported that they have a great number of rapid-fire guns.

An official despatch from the Amer- ican Consul at Tien-Tsin confirms the report of the burning of the foreign concessions. The despatch adds:—

"The casualties were heavy and ammunition was running short. The Chinese troops are bombarding the city with field guns. The Chinese number 15,000 outside the city, and their emissaries crowd the foreign quarters, and are constantly setting fire to buildings. The Chinese have heavy guns, which are being worked steadily from the walls of the native city.

"All the Consulates have been de- stroyed, and the foreigners are con- gregated at the Town hall.

"The Chinese troops possess the best cannon and rifles, but the rab- ble have improvised weapons, trust- ing to their numbers. The Russians are now intrenched at the railway station, and are resisting the advance of the enemy, who are coming up in overwhelming numbers."

The foreign Consuls to-day address- ed a note to the Chinese Admiral here asking him to remove his fleet. Two of his ships have sailed, and the rest will sail shortly.

NO RELIEF TO SEYMOUR.

British Admiral Says Tien-Tsin is Fighting for Its Life.

A despatch from London, says:—The Admiralty has received the following despatch from Rear-Admiral Bruce, dated Taku, via Chefoo, Sunday:—

"The total force which left Tien-Tsin with the commander-in-chief for Pekin was about 2,000, composed of detachments from the allied ships. No action could possibly be taken to relieve the commandant-in-chief because it was only known that he was cut off by Tien-Tsin being invested.

"Tien-Tsin has been fighting for its life ever since. It was on receipt of information that the Chinese army had ordered trains for attacking Tien-Tsin; that they were ravaging Tong Ku and reinforcing Taku, as well as mining the mouth of the Pei-Ho, that it was promptly determined to seize Taku. Since then every effort has been made to relieve Tien-Tsin. I have commandeered a small coasting steamer for taking troops and sick and wounded across the bay to Wei-Hai-Wei, where I intend making a temporary base hospital and asylum for refugees."

The Official Gazette of St. Petersburg to-day contains an order of the Czar as follows:—

"As we consider it necessary to raise the troops in the Amur military district to a war footing, we direct the War Minister to take the requisite measures. At the same time we direct that the necessary number of reservists belonging to Siberian Amur military district shall be called out for active service."

AWFUL RAILWAY HORROR.

PASSENGER TRAIN COMPLETELY WRECKED IN GEORGIA.

Thirty-five People Killed—Every Person on the Train Perished Except the Pullman Passengers.

A despatch from Atlanta, Ga., says:—A passenger train on the Macon branch of the Southern railway ran into a washout one and a half miles north of McDonough, Ga., on Saturday night, and was completely wrecked. The wreck caught fire, and the entire train, with the exception of the sleeper, was destroyed. Every person on the train except the occupants of the Pullman car perished. Not a member of the train crew escaped. Thirty-five people in all were killed.

A cloud-burst broke over that section of the country about 6 o'clock Saturday night, and presumably shortly after dark washed away a section of track nearly 100 feet in length. Into this the swiftly moving train plunged.

THE WRECK AT LARGE.

The storm was still raging, and all the car windows were closed. The passengers, secure as they thought, and sheltered comfortably from the inclement weather, went to their death without an instant's warning. The wreck caught fire a few minutes after the fall, and all the coaches were burned except the Pullman car. There was no escape, as the heavy Pullman car weighted down the others, and the few alive in the sleeper were unable to render assistance to their fellow-passengers. For a brief time there was silence. Then the occupants of the Pullman car recovered from their bewilderment, and after hard work managed to get out of their car, and found themselves on the track in the pouring rain.

AN AWFUL SCENE.

The extent of the catastrophe was quickly apparent. Flames were already seen coming from that part of the wreckage not covered by the water. As the wreck began to go to pieces, under the destructive work of both flames and flood, human bodies floated out from the mass, and were carried down stream by the swift current. The storm did not abate in fury. Flashes of lightning added to the steady glow of the burning train, and lit up the scene with fearful distinctness.

A wreck train was started out from Atlanta at midnight, but owing to the burning wreckage, nothing could be done until morning. A special train at 6 o'clock Sunday took doctors, ministers, railroad officials, and helpers to the scene, but nothing could be done save to gather up the bodies. Some of the bodies were terribly burned, while others were crushed beyond recognition. Only three women were on the train; two escaped. It is presumed the other perished, but the body has not been found. A section boss with a gang of eight negroes oc-

A despatch from Green Bay, Wis. says:—A northbound passenger train on the Chicago and North-Western road, loaded with excursionists bound for the Saengerfest in this city, collided at 10.15 o'clock Sunday morning with a freight train at Depere, 50 miles south of here. Six persons were killed, one is missing, and 34 were injured.

ALMOST GOT KITCHENER.

Boers Come Near Capturing the Chief of Staff.

According to a Cape Town despatch, General Kitchener himself had a narrow escape from capture in the engagement at Leeuw spruit on June 14. He was sleeping in the repair train when the latter was attacked and many of the engineers captured.

General Kitchener's sleeping car was at Kopjes station, when the Boers, under Gen. De Wet, suddenly opened a rifle fire at 3 a.m. Kitchener managed to reach his horse and galloped to Rheoster, two miles distant. The Boers numbered 900 men, with three guns. They burned the culvert, which had just been rebuilt, and derailed the train.

The Boers alleged to be hemmed in by Gen. Rundle began shelling Ficksburg June 19. It is said they apprehend that a force is marching from the north upon them, hence they will endeavour to break through southward.

TIEN TSIN SIEGE RAISED.

The Combined Forces Entered the Town on Saturday.

A despatch from Chefoo, Tuesday, says:—Rear-Admiral Kempff reports by a Japanese torpedo boat that the combined forces entered Tien-Tsin on Saturday, June 23, sustaining small loss. They started on Sunday to relieve the force which left Tien-Tsin on June 10, and which is believed to be surrounded near Pekin.

According to Japanese reports Admiral Seymour has been captured and the Ministers have left Pekin guarded by Chinese soldiers. Their whereabouts is unknown.

SHORT OF AMMUNITION.

Foreign Troops at Tien-Tsin Fought Hard for Three Days.

A despatch from Berlin says:—The commander of the German squadron at Taku has wired as follows to the Government:—

"A French officer, who has arrived here from Tien-Tsin, which he left June 20, reports that for three days the city has been bombarded by the Chinese, and that the troops of the foreign detachment, were short of ammunition.

"The German cruiser Irene has arrived here with 240 marines, who, with 380 English and 1,500 Russians, proceeded to Tien-Tsin. The railway is working from Taku to within 15 kilometres of Tien-Tsin."

in the federation of English-speaking nations, and in a hundred other ways changed for the better the whole course of Canadian history, doing more for the country and its people in four years than their predecessors accomplished in five times that period. It is a thankless task, I say, to oppose a government with such a record, it would be discouraging under any circumstances, but is particularly so just now, when every desperate effort to ferret out or concoct charges of wrongdoing have utterly failed, and even legitimate criticism upon questions of policy which admit of difference of opinion, fall upon the uninterested ear of a satisfied and contented community. How eagerly the Tories seize upon a rumor that the general elections may not be held until the spring, and how devotedly they are praying that it may be so, for something may turn up, they hope, in the meantime.

STILL BUSY MAKING RECORDS.

The latest figures obtainable from the Department of Trade and Commerce indicate that the present year, when completed at the end of this month, will once again make a new record in our history. The total, so far, for eleven months is $323,596,476 as against $312,000,000 for the previous full and completed year. We have become thoroughly accustomed to these stories of rapid development, for each year since the change of Government in 1896 has been marked by phenomenal progress, but to fully appreciate the improvement and to realize how impossible and absurd it is to pretend that the change is simply a happy coincidence and in no way attributable to better methods of government, it is necessary to look back over the past, and make one or two comparisons.

A BRIEF RETROSPECT.

We began at Confederation with a trade of $131,000,000. There were various fluctuations, but the general tendency was upward and in 1883 the trade was $230,340,000 or an increase of nearly a hundred millions in the first fifteen years of Confederation. After 1883 there was a falling off until 1892, when the figure of $241,369,000 was reached. In 1896 the trade was $239,025,000. From that time the increase has been extraordinary. There has been more growth in the last four years than in the first fifteen years of Confederation. While the imports of the country have been more than doubled since Confederation, the exports have been trebled. That this record of unprecedented increase may be modified sooner or later goes without saying—no reasonable man can expect otherwise, but let the future bring what it may, Canada can never fall back to her old condition of stagnation. Better methods and sounder principles of trade have become established, the old fallacies have been thoroughly discredited, and the ultra-protectionist policy of

BURIED UNDER SNOW

BUCKING A BIG DRIFT WITH AN OLD FASHIONED PLOW.

A Scene on the Railroad Lines on the Plains of Dakota During a Blizzard Before the Rotary Snow Killers Came Into Use.

In a paper on snowplows in St. Nicholas George E. Walsh describes the work of clearing away snowdrifts on a Dakota railroad with a wood faced, steel shod plow, before the rotary steam plow was invented.

It was hardly dusk before the order was issued to get ready a few of the lighter snowplows. These were always run out first and nearly always were stuck in the snow. If the storm proved a mild one, they would keep the tracks clear for ordinary traffic, but if the blizzard was correctly reported—and the worst was expected—the largest plows were called into service.

The welcome word to attack the snow finally comes, and the plows leave the yard for their various destinations. On the main line the heaviest plows are used. One of these towers up almost to the top of the engine stack, so that it can tackle the highest drifts that may be met. The engineer in his caboose cannot see ahead well, and the conductor has to direct him from his position on top of the cab, where a small cupola has been built. Behind the two engines driving the snowplow come the drag out and a train of cars loaded with provisions, clothing, extra coal and a crew of shovellers. The drag out remains at a respectful distance behind the snowplow and has an easy time of it.

Out of the yard the procession moves. Then it reaches the plains, and as the snow has drifted off the track on the level the plows have little difficulty in clearing them of what remains. A 20 or 30 mile gait is struck, and the snow flies on either side of the plow as if shot out from a cannon. If no stalled trains are reported in this section and no serious cuts are met with, the snowplow goes merrily along, and the men join in the enthusiasm of the great inanimate machine that seems suddenly endowed with life. But after a long run the plows cut the snow less swiftly, and the speed of the train is slackened.

A huge drift has packed across the track ahead. The train is stopped short of it, and the superintendent walks ahead to examine it. If he thinks the plow can go through it without the aid of the shovellers, the train backs up a mile or two, and then, under a thundering headway, it comes down upon the drift with an impetus that fairly lifts the huge engines from the track. The first impact into the snowdrift gives a dull thud and jolt to the train. Then all is darkness as the engine dives into the drift and bores its way through. The speed is slowly reduced, although the throttle of the engine is wide open, and for a few moments there is some anxiety as to whether the powerful engines will get through the mass before their headway is stopped entirely. It is a moment of intense suspense as the train gradually slows up and comes almost to a stand-

Sometimes the shock of st snow at a 60 mile gait smashes generally in the cab and knock one down. The snow flew in boose, and that and the escap nearly suffocated you. The fight in this way day after day unt was cleared.

The advent of the rotary robbed the western roads of these old, time terrors, but it lished a picturesque and excitin between man and nature in her wildest mood.

has now few adherents save in the ranks of those who were making themselves rich under its fostering care at the expense of the community at large.

No better evidence of the permanency of the improvement could be afforded than is given in the figures which record the increase in the acreage under cultivation in Manitoba. In 1890 there were 1,082,000 acres under tillage for all crops, in 1895 the total had risen to 1,887,796, while this year there are 2,612,134 acres, or an increase in ten years of 150 per cent. This is in the oldest settled of the great western Provinces, the progress in the Territories is in like proportion, and it means a permanent growth which no future depression can seriously effect, though of course an occasional unfavorable season may modify it temporarily. There is healthy natural advancement and not the artificial improvement which results from the forced growth of protection nurtured industries.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

According to all accounts that are reaching us from across the water Canada's exhibit at the Paris Exposition is one that reflects credit upon those who are responsible for its preparation and arrangement, and what is more important, one that will be of immense value in advertising the vast resources and opportunities of the Dominion. It is well calculated to make the Dominion better known abroad, attract the attention of foreign capital to her natural wealth of minerals and lumber, and to illustrate the fertility of her soil and her capabilities for varied production. Two of the most important exhibits in this respect are those of forestry and mining. The golden wealth of British Columbia and the Klondike has given the Dominion a prominence among the gold-producing nations of the world which is attracting all the greater interest because of its recent origin.

The nickel deposits of Sudbury too, are creating a keen interest, more particularly because the other great nickel deposits of the world,—the mines of New Caledonia,—are almost entirely in the hands of French capitalists. The exhibit of Canadian coal, too, is attracting much attention, particularly as at the present time the price of coal is very high in Europe. Canada's forestry exhibit is the largest and most varied in the entire exhibition, and is divided into three general groups,—(1) section of the principal Canadian trees, some in the form of logs and some polished on one face; (2);—six foot lengths of the chief Canadian woods, one-third polished, one-third waxed, and one-third in their natural condition; and (3):—samples of all the wood products of Canada, such as pails, boxes, implements, etc.

It is a good thing to girdle trees with a piece of tarred cloth, or cotton batting to prevent the caterpillars from climbing into the branches.—Either is an easy and effective preventative.

ing headway; it comes down upon the drift with an impetus that fairly lifts the huge engines from the track. The first impact into the snowdrift gives a dull thud and jolt to the train. Then all is darkness as the engine dives into the drift and bores its way through. The speed is slowly reduced, although the throttle of the engine is wide open, and for a few moments there is some anxiety as to whether the powerful engines will get through, the mass before their headway is stopped entirely. It is a moment of intense suspense as the train gradually slows up and comes almost to a standstill. Then suddenly light shoots out of the darkness ahead, the speed of the puffing engines increases, and in another moment we are clear of the snowdrift. There is a sigh of relief from the half smothered conductor overhead and a shout of glee from the trainmen.

Another run across the country is then made, and in the crisp morning air the journey is exhilarating. But there is a dangerous cut ahead, and the engineer slows up instinctively. This cut is a natural receptacle for snow, and there is no likelihood of its being open this time. The great snowplow pokes its nose close up to the beginning of the cut, and then the superintendent again runs ahead to make examination. This time he decides that it is too great a risk to attempt to force the plow through the densely packed snow. There is danger of the plow leaving the track and causing a general wreck and tangle. So in no uncertain voice he orders the two hundred or so shovelers out of their car and under his direction they undermine the great bank of snow. The science of engineering is displayed here, for the drift must be honeycombed in such a way that the plow will be enabled to pass clean through it. Trenches, holes and tunnels are cut in the deepest places. Then the two engines, with the snowplow, back up probably two miles to get under sufficient headway. The plow is examined and found to be in good condition. Then, with a piercing whistle, the engines start forward.

This is the most picturesque and awe inspiring run of any. The throttle is thrown wide open, and the engines rush forward with mad impetuosity. Before half the distance is covered you are swinging through the air at 40 miles an hour, and by the time the cut is reached the speed has increased to 60 or 70. To be hurled against a gigantic snow wall at this rate of speed is an experience sufficient to daunt the stoutest heart. The conductor crouches down in the caboose, the windows are tightly closed and the snow curtains drawn. There is a moment of sickening suspense, then a dull thud and shock, and then complete darkness and a sensation that you are being whirled downward by some mighty and irresistible power. It is only the mighty snowplow pushing its way through the snow, but the queer sensation makes you hold your breath.

To cap the climax the engines stop. You open the snow curtains. All is dark. You are buried ten feet deep in snow, the engines are stalled, and the magnificent snowplow is overcome by the force of the tons of snow. There is nothing to do until the snow shovelers have dug you out. Then, with the help of the ten wheel drag out engine, the plow is pulled back from her bed of snow. Again and again the operation is repeated until the cut is cleared.

A Maddened Rhinoceros

Parker Gillmore in his book "Great Thirst Land," tells of an encounter with wild animals in South Africa.

One night we had outspanned late, and the "boys" had built a mouse fire close by the wagon between eating and shouting, keeping awake. Toward daylight this was going on, when I heard several yells of terror. I looked out of the wagon. The boys were flying in all directions, and a rhinoceros was trotting backward and across the fire, tossing carcasses, cooking utensils and blankets about each of them contained somebody.

A red blanket seemed particularly to take the fancy of the irate beast. He went and got his horn well. But there it seemed to stick. Then he shook his head the more tightly blanket wrapped itself about it, hiding his eyes.

He shook his head, pawed with feet, lay down his clumsy legs, rolled from side to side, struggling vain to get free of the enveloping net. I laughed aloud at his antics.

Suddenly he gave a snort, a bow, a kick and started for the sombre ows of the forest, but he carried once bullet behind his shoulder. He escaped knocking that ornate headpiece of his against a tree wonder. In the morning he was dead. The bullet had done its work.

the scene is even more picturesque than the force of the snowplow. White crusts in the air as if a bomb had been exploded. For 100 feet either side the snow falls in a shower of diamonds, burying out of sight any man who ventures too near the track. The shock of striking the snow at a 60 mile gait smashed things in the cab and knocked every man down. The snow flew into the cab and that and the escaping steam suffocated you. The fight went on day after day until the line was cleared.

T CATCHING ON SHIPS.

Water Runs Out, the Beasts Over the Vessel to Find It.

With some friends, the captain of a big freight steamer taking at this port told some queer stories. "I have the ship cleaned by professional rat catchers whenever we are at Liverpool," he said, "and times we try to keep them down. But it's hard work. We have to use poison. If we did, the ship would soon be full of dead rats, and we should breed a fever. Our method of the wire cage pattern, and the craft has to be used in setting, for a ship rat is a very cunning animal, and he will steer clear of his landlubber brothers walking about with their eyes wide open. If we bait the traps in the ordinary way, we catch a dozen in a year. Our method is:

On the first night we open the trap and tie them in that position with string, so they can't possibly get out. Then we put scraps of old meat and leave them until the morning. That's to reassure them that the strange wire contrivance is perfectly harmless and that they can enter with a certainty of getting again. Next night we renew the bait and take off the strings, and, as a last thing, we catch all that are in the hold. I have seen them so full of bait they seemed impossible to get another rat, which is pretty good evidence, it, that they can't communicate with one another and give the alarm. Nothing new about the trick. It is practiced on all big ships and rats get too bad.

As the creatures have enough to drink," continued the captain, "I give them a fresh cigar, 'they don't give any particular trouble and keep right down in the bowels of the ship. Thirst makes them desperate, and they become an unmitigated pest and will go boldly anywhere in a drink. I have known them in the fore-cabin in such numbers that they drove the sailors to the deck, and at times I have seen several men make a combined rush for a waould surprise most people unaccustomed to seafaring life to know that usually kept in the hold of cargo ships for the rats. It's done as usual below, and if for any reason runs short there is sure to be a. I said just now that when the rats were thirsty they would go up, and I mean it to the letter. I climb the rigging like monkeys, a common thing for them to go to the topsails looking for the rats that accumulate in the bight of the furling canvas.

One time I was in port I saw a green snake the size of a cat. He had t to shake out the topgallant as he did so four enormous rats it and ran up one arm, across lers and down the other side. o startled that he let loose all would certainly have fallen to if he hadn't providentially in the footline. A FATAL RAISE OF SALARY.

Method a Merchant Took to Get Rid of a Contract.

"I wouldn't give a cent for a contract with an employer," said an advertising man. "Contracts are useless. If a man hires you for a certain sum to do certain work he pays you that sum because you are worth it to him, and he'll keep you without a contract just as long as he will keep you with one. If he agrees to pay you more than you are worth, he'll find it out sooner or later and then your contract isn't worth a fig. I know it shouldn't be so, but it is so. I've got in mind now a case in which a New York merchant who boasts of 40 years of business integrity figured. (He employed a buyer in one of his departments at a yearly salary and contracted with him for five years. This buyer was one of the best in the

He was just as badly off as if he had had no contract, and I tell you that unless you are dealing with an absolutely honest man a contract with an employer isn't worth the paper it is written on."—New York Sun.

According to the story, the first one who attempted to ascend the hill was Genius, who made rapid progress, but became quite tired toward the end of the ascent and foolishly stopped to rest, while Application, patient and plodding, pushed forward slowly up the hill and attained the summit first. I have noticed that those who succeed in life are not the geniuses. They are those who apply themselves to whatever business or profession they undertake with all their hearts and by patient, plodding work, backed up by good health and good habits, succeed.

Made Him Famous.

A. M. Palmer, the famous theatrical manager, once told a story which illustrated the reason for Mansfield's success on the stage. Mansfield before he was known to fame was cast for a part in "Baron Chevalier," a part so small that a common thing for them to go to the topsails looking for the rat that accumulates in the light of furred canvas. One time I was in port I saw a green rat the scare of his life. He had got to shake out the topgallant as he did so four enormous rats came out and ran up one arm, across the yard and down the other side, so startled that he let loose a cry that I would certainly have fallen to if he hadn't providentially been in the footline. Many of the hands make pets of rats during voyage, and it is astonishingly easy they can be tamed and made into tricks. When a professional comes aboard for a general raid, always a frantic rounding up, of rats to get them out of harm's way after the battle is over."—New Times-Democrat.

Maddened Rhinoceros.

Gillmore in his book, "The first Land," tells of an experience with wild animals in South Africa. He says he had outspanned rather than the "boys" had built an enclosure close by the wagon and, beating and shouting, kept me toward daylight this was still when I heard several exclamations. I looked out of the front of the wagon. The boys were flying helter-skelter everywhere, and a rhinoceros charging backward and forward with a fire, tossing carcasses, skins, tents and blankets about as if a bomb contained somebody. A blanket seemed particularly to fancy of the irate beast. At it and got his horn well into it. It seemed to stick. The more he hit the head the more tightly he crapped itself about it, entirely covering his eyes. He pawed with his fore feet down his clumsy length and on one side to side, struggling in and out free of the enveloping blanket. He laughed aloud at his grotesque appearance. He gave a snort, a bound and started for the somber shade of the forest, but he carried a two feet behind his shoulder. How he knocked that ornamental tree of his against a tree was a sight. In the morning he was found with a bullet had done its work.

If he agrees to pay you more than you are worth, he'll find it out sooner or later and then your contract isn't worth a fig. I know it shouldn't be so, but it is so. I've got in mind now a case in which a New York merchant who boasts of 40 years of business integrity figured. (He employed a buyer in one of his departments at a yearly salary and contracted with him for five years. This buyer was one of the best in the business. He worked along for about a year, and then something happened that made the merchant dissatisfied. Of course the buyer was under a contract, and the merchant could not get rid of him without violating it. What did he do? Why, he sent for this man, and he said to him: "Mr. —, you have done splendid work for us, and we are more than satisfied. We feel that you deserve some reward, and we have determined to increase your salary $1,000 a year." "Well, the buyer said he was very grateful and all that and went out and put in some of his best licks. He got the increased salary for two weeks and signed a receipt for it. Then the merchant sent for him and said: "Mr. —, we were mistaken in our estimate of you, and we have determined to let you go. We don't need you any longer." "Well, I don't want to stay where I'm not wanted," said the buyer, "but I have a contract, you know." "Contract?" said the merchant. "What contract? Oh, no, you have no contract. You consented to the abrogation of the contract two weeks ago." "Well, I didn't think that"—the buyer began. "It don't make any difference what you think," said the merchant with 40 years of business integrity, "you did abrogate it. We don't need you any longer. Good day, sir." "Well, now, probably if that buyer had taken the case to court he would have succeeded in enforcing the contract in spite of the fact that he had accepted an increase of salary over the contract price. But suppose he had tried to enforce it? Where would he have been? Employers don't like to hire men who might make trouble for them. If this man had sued, he would practically have shut the door of every other establishment that hired buyers against himself. Then again if he

THE WHITE PLAGUE.

Efforts of Russia to Keep Leprosy Beyond the Siberian Border.

The east is never free from leprosy, and Russia is always dreading that the white pest may cross her borders. Occasionally, though not often, it creeps into the homes of the aristocracy. A certain grand ball was given at St. Petersburg during the spring of 1898. Among the guests was a young and beautiful unmarried countess. A gentleman asked one of her relatives to introduce him, received an assent and danced with the lady several times. Later, as they stood in an exposed portion of the ballroom, the gentleman said: "This draft is injurious. You should be careful of yourself, for I see there is a slight eruption on one of your shoulders. Oh, it isn't marked enough to spoil your beauty. But I, you know, am a physician. Have you, by the way, any other little spots like this elsewhere on your lovely skin?" "Yes," replied the lady; "I have a few. And I wish, doctor, that you could give me some medicine for them." "It would afford me great happiness to do so," was the gallant reply. That night the countess did not return to her home. All search for her resulted vainly. It was not until many weeks afterward that her agonized parents received a letter which told them that their daughter was in the X. leper asylum and that all attempts to see her must prove futile. The parents begged piteously to have her immured at her own home in a tower which she alone would occupy. Anything was preferable for them to the living death which they felt now to be her doom. But no entreaties availed. The gentleman who had danced with the young countess at the ball had been a disguised police agent, and she will end her days in the terrible lazar house whither he had her conveyed among others accursed like herself.—Collier's Weekly.

Application Versus Genius.

Mansfield before he was known to fame was cast for a part in "Baron Chevalier," a part so small that other actors refused to play it. The night of the first performance Mansfield made the hit of the production owing to the realistic manner in which he simulated death from paralysis. It afterward transpired that he had employed a physician to coach him in portraying the effects of a paralytic stroke.

When the house of commons votes, it marches out into the lobbies, where the members are counted by the tellers. The average distance traversed by each member from his seat to the lobby is 240 feet, so that at an all night sitting on an important bill, when 33 divisions were made, each member tramped exactly a mile and a half, without counting unofficial excursions to the smoking and refreshment rooms. As a diversion usually takes 12 minutes, the house was six hours and a half on its feet that night.—London Globe.

THE WATER DID IT.

HERE is an old adage recorded which teaches that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. The same can be said of rheumatism, which usually attacks employees of all bottling works, in the hands and arms, on account of them having to handle cold substances and dabble in cold water all the year round. Mr. Oscar Perry, formerly employed at J. R. Hinds' bottling works, Kingston, Ont., was a sufferer in this respect. Rheumatism affected him in the arms and shoulders, and besides the pain experienced he suffered pecuniary loss. After having tried various treatments without obtaining relief, he was induced to give Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure a trial. Less than half a bottle gave him relief, and before the entire contents of the first bottle were used he was freed from rheumatism, and it has not since troubled him. He did not look for such rapid results, and would have been satisfied with obtaining relief, whereas the medicine has effected a cure.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles, containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

WOMAN'S WELFARE.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Gives and Maintains a Perfect Condition of Bodily Health.

The great susceptibility of women to nervousness and worry is heightened by the fact that, in the majority of cases, they lead confined and monotonous lives, narrowed down to the four walls of home the greater part of the day.

Paine's Celery Compound is just what such nervous and depressed women need to restore their nerves to energy and to lift them out of their constipated, dyspeptic habit of body.

No other remedy known to medical men is so rich in flesh-forming and energy-producing constituents for women as Paine's Celery Compound. It is also a true and unfailing regulator, keeps the blood pure and rich, and maintains an even condition of good health that makes a woman contented and happy. Mrs. Wilcox, of Greenmore, Ont., writes as follows:

"For years I have suffered from constant sick headache and nervousness. At times

THE MARRYING AGE.

When Should a Man Start Out to Find a Wife?

At what age should a man marry? That depends upon the man. Some men are more fitted for the responsibilities of matrimony at 25 than others are at 35. If marriage, however, be postponed until after this last figure, a man is likely to get into what may be called the habit of celibacy, from which, as from other bad habits, it is hard to break away. In this habit of celibacy he will continue until he is about 60 years of age, when a great desire will come over him to try what matrimony is like just before he dies, and he will propose right and left to everything in petticoats, until at last he is picked up, not for himself, but for his money or his position, or because some one is tired of being called "miss" and wants the novel sensation of writing "Mrs." before her name.

An old man told a friend that he wanted to marry before he died, if only to have some one to close his eyes. "Perhaps," suggested the friend, "you will get some one who will open them." It is not natural for a young girl to wish to marry an old man. A father said to his daughter: "Now, when it is time for you to marry, I won't allow you to throw yourself away on one of the frivolous young fellows I see around. I shall select for you a staid, sensible, middle aged man—what do you say to one about 50 years of age?" "Well, father," replied the girl, "it is just the same to me."

work requires that they shall have large facilities in the line of catalogues to consult and shall be able to spare the time of one man for hours, days or perhaps weeks to search carefully through all the lists. All catalogues of auctions of rare books which have been held in recent years in various parts of the world are valuable in assisting in such work, and the last one examined might be the only source of the desired statistics.

The prices charged for the work vary greatly, as might be expected, according to the amount of time which has to be spent. One dealer who does a good deal of this appraising seldom undertakes to look up a book for less than $2, and his charges may run from this up to $20 in rare cases, when the edition is a particularly hard one to trace. The charges are not necessarily based, however, upon the value of the book, for frequently one worth comparatively little requires just as much labor in the search as one which proves to be a rare prize. The patron takes the risk of this, and when it happens he is obliged to pay for the work and stand the loss.—New York Tribune.

The Gambling Instinct.

The car was crowded—the "standing room only" sign should have been put out. A young fellow and a more mature man with gray hair were standing at the back door. After a while a woman occupying a corner seat left the car. It was a toss up whether the young man or old man was nearest the vacant seat. The young man happened to be nearer the door.

I shall select for you a staid, sensible, middle aged man—what do you say to one about 50 years of age?" "Well, father," replied the girl, "if it's just the same to you, I should prefer two of 25."

Perhaps the best advice one could give a young man in this matter is to say, "Wait until you cannot wait any longer." Wait—that is to say, until she—that not impossible she—comes with smiles so sweet and manners so gracious that you cannot wait any longer, then marry, and you may be happy ever after. As to the age at which women should marry, I am afraid of burning my fingers with that question. All I shall say is that if some women are not worth looking at after 30 years of age, there are quite as many not worth speaking to before it. Let a man please himself, but let him not marry either a child or an old woman.—Chicago Times-Herald.

APPRAISING OLD BOOKS.

A Tollsme Task That Book Owners Have to Pay For.

"Can you tell me whether this is a valuable book?" or "How much is this book worth?" are questions often asked at the chief secondhand bookstores by patrons who think they have picked up some rare old edition or who think they can perhaps dispose to advantage of some volume which they own and believe to be prized by collectors. If the book is obviously worthless, their inquiries can be answered shortly and positively, but in a great number of cases the information they seek is such that no book dealer, however well informed, can give it correctly offhand. And just because investigation is necessary to determine its such information is worth money. The owner of the book will not in most instances obtain the market quotation on his property or even perhaps find out whether there is any considerable value in it without paying for the knowledge.

Not all dealers will or can appraise books in this way for patrons, for the proves to be a rare prize. The patron takes the risk of this, and when it happens he is obliged to pay for the work and stand the loss.—New York Tribune.

After a while a woman occupying a corner seat left the car. It was a toss up whether the young man or old man was nearest the vacant seat. The young man, however, made way and motioned to the older man to take the seat.

"No, no; you sit down," said he. "Oh, no; you are an old man. Take the seat."

"Nonsense," retorted the older man, with some feeling, "sit down. I guess I am as able to stand as you are."

"I can't do it, sir. I would much prefer you to have the seat."

"I'll match you for it, then."

Forthwith the old man produced a coin from his pocket. The young man did the same, smilingly. The coins were flipped. The young man won and took the disputed seat. The old man opened his paper in a satisfied manner, and just then some one remarked aloud, "Dead game sport."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Baron, de Hermansthal, the chief of the police and half-a-dozen of his men, will in the meantime be stationed in my bedroom, the door of which is, as you know, exactly opposite to the study door. As soon as they have seen that the spy is within they will line the passage guarding every exit, Baron de Hermansthal will enter the study by one door, while you, whom I shall ask to remain in the adjoining room, will enter by the other; and I think," added his Excellency, rubbing his hands with delight, "that when our spy finds himself thus confronted, he will be only too willing to sell us himself and his silence for whatever we choose to offer him."

Zaika had listened to his Excellency's discourse silently and attentively; he did not wish to lose a single word of the plan that was to expose the spy to infamy. That spy was his wife, the Countess Wladimir Rostopchine, the bearer of his own historic name.

What he said in answer to his Excellency he did not know; it was evidently satisfactory, for the Ambassador appeared not to notice anything peculiar in his secretary's demeanour; how he spent the early part of the evening he knew still less; all he was distinctly conscious of was the all-pervading thought: "Count Wladimir Rostopchine, must save his wife's honour, his own, at any cost, but how?" By warning her, of course. But she was not in the hotel; the young man had seen her going out radiantly beautiful, laughing and chatting gaily. She had not dined in the hall. Would he have an opportunity of speaking to her? If he had, would she listen? He had written to her a guarded, carefully-worded epistle, which she alone would understand, and he had bribed one of the hotel servants to place the letter in her room.

Would she get the letter? Would she read it? were the eternal questions that recurred to his fevered brain, as his Excellency, very excited, was giving him some final instructions, and then left him in the room next to the study, face to face for half-an-hour, with torturing hopes and fears, while the clock ticked mercilessly on.

How short, and yet how interminably long, the minutes seemed! All at once Andre Zaika jumped up, every nerve tingling with emotion; he had heard in the study a faint noise—a mere, nothing, the rustle of a silk dress. It was curious that he should feel so calm suddenly; his emotion had vanished, his nerves seemed to have gone to rest. He pushed open the door of the study, and turned up the electric light. The Countess did not seem frightened or even astonished at seeing him; she raised her eyebrows slightly, and her lips were once more parted in that curious, half-contemptuous smile.

The young man seized her hand, and with utmost calm drew her to the

"Monsieur—" she began.

"Ah, Madame!" he said, "do not speak to the dead, bid them good-bye, and wish them Godspeed, and let them go whence they came."

"I owe you my safety and my honour, Monsieur."

"You owe me nothing, Madame," said the young man, simply; "the name you bear is still mine, and it was but the ghost of Wladimir Rostopchine who came to defend what was his own."

"You are not going, Monsieur?" she said in entreaty, as the young man turned away.

She held out her hand to him, and once more their hands were joined as they had been ten years ago, and their eyes met, but pity and contempt had faded from her enigmatic face now; she could read in his that their parts had been exchanged.

He bent low and kissed her icy cold fingers, close to the spot where the old pope had placed the narrow gold band—"In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

The next moment Countess Wladimir Rostopchine was alone.

The arrest of Count Wladimir Rostopchine, whom everyone had believed to be dead, and his subsequent trial on a charge preferred against him ten years previously, became the talk of St. Petersburg society that winter. It was said that high influence was being exerted on his behalf; that his Excellency the Transbalkanian ambassador, accredited to the Court of Vienna, moved heaven and earth on behalf of the young man, who had been his friend and secretary for years. Therefore, when Count Wladimir received from His Majesty, a gracious pardon, mitigated by an order that he should continue to live out of Russia, no one was particularly astonished.

As usual, rumour had been altogether on the wrong scent. The young Count's chief advocate was a beautiful woman whom society had long known and admired as the widowed Countess Rostopchine, and whose honour her husband had so bravely saved by his noble self-sacrifice. And as her honour also entailed that of Russia, whose prestige would have gravely suffered, had her agent been exposed and compromised, the paternal Government was obliged to grant the young man in return both his life and the use of his name.

He now lives in Paris with his young wife, whom he is said to idolise. They both go a great deal into society, but neither of them has ever touched on politics, since the night when Countess Rostopchine so narrowly escaped being branded as a spy.

CHINA'S VAST POPULATION

A GREAT EMPIRE WITH THREE HUNDRED MILLION PEOPLE.

Tempting Field for Commerce Offered All Nations—Ancient Glory of the Celestial Kingdom—The One Criterion in the Present Crisis.

"The present crisis in China is significant of a great and wonderful transformation. The last mighty colossus of heathenism is crumbling. A new celestial empire is being born out of the throes and travail of the nation's life. God is calling China to a new life."

Thus wrote Rev. W. Remfry Hunt, the head of the Christian mission in Central China, in his last official communication to the missionary headquarters. As a bold and competent pioneer of the Gospel he may have overestimated the crisis or the cause, but in view of the present situation his words, written less than one year ago, have a strange propheticness. God may be calling China into a new life, but for whom, or just how, is not so evident. If the Powers fail to head Russia off the "new life" of heathenism will be a mere change from Confucianism to the rites of the Greek Church, a transition not at all acceptable to the Protestant world. And if escaping the Bear she becomes the prey of Christian England, the fate of India is hers, which view of the future doubtless influences John Chinaman, who is next door to India and knows what the dauntless Briton has wrought there.

But, after all, the one criterion in the Chinese situation is: "What do we get?" Is there sufficient gain to warrant the risk? It is the criterion of the civilized nation and the uncivilized, since Adam. And when you consider it on all sides the gain is great from purely commercial point of view.

THE MAMMOTH EMPIRE.

China is larger than the United States with Alaska. It is 24 times larger than the German Empire and 30 times larger than France. It has 4,400 miles of coast line, 1,700 walled cities and a million villages and towns. Words fail us to impress on the mind the vastness of this greatest empire of antiquity, whose teeming millions, enslaved in the bondage of heathenism, cry loud and long for the light "to shine upon them that sit in darkness and the shadow of death."

The fabulous history of the Chinese lies back a million years. The first dawn is clouded in the mists of the centuries. The real historical China is contemporary with legendary Rome, China is the ancient Colossus. Before Israel was called out of Egypt China was a civilized Power. From the time of Abraham China has had a settled form of constitutional government. She lifts her hoary head over the graveyards of ancient empires.

HER ANCIENT GLORY.

The Chinese had firearms in the reign of Edward I.; engraving 1000 B.C.; made coins, 1100 B.C.; invented compass, 2634 B.C. The art of printing was practiced 500 years before Caxton was born. They made paper

In Honan, Anhwei and Kiang Emperor of China rules over 80 of people. A hundred cities size and capacity of London hardly accommodate the 400,000 the Chinese race. Turning funeral arithmetic, what fact us! Thirty-three thousand die A million a month are dying in The pallid ranks pass away like funeral march! It is equal to ing London every three months all the people of the United in less than a year and a half. Think of them living. Make an army and let them march miles a day, and for days and months under the sunlit solemn stars you will hear ceaseless tramp, tramp, tramp weary, burdened, pressing through 231-2 years.

HER FATE IS SEALED

Yet her fate is sealed. Despair ancient glory, her vast area, teeming millions, it needs but power of perception and but close study of the condition of to see that China, which for centuries could boast imperial strength is weak—very weak—almost on verge of dissolution. Weak in to properly defend her borders in the administration of her affairs, weak in the face of demands of Western Powers, whose existence is but a day compared her hoary centuries. What contrast is her attitude of half tury, or even a quarter of a century ago, to her attitude to-day helplessness to resist the strong aggressive, selfish demands of Western Powers! How quickly and weakly she makes concessions of sense and painful significance nation after another. Observe she has been stripped of her territory. Her interior borders in Turkistan have been ravished her by the Russians, whose iron and relentless pressure have continued without interruption or check. Her nominal sway over southern kingdom of Annam has been overthrown by the volatile and solvent French, whose coming bane to every land they take. by a combination of causes, has entirely escaped her influence and control. Formosa, with its lofty tains and camphor forests, has to the Japanese. Manchuria is ally under Russian control, choice places are being snapped along the coast without much for ceremony. The great nations of Europe are seated, or sailing, expectation on her shores, waiting watching until the inevitable day of the spoils brings the good fruits they are seeking.

slirk dress. It was curious that he should feel so calm suddenly; his emotion had vanished, his nerves seemed to have gone to rest. He pushed open the door of the study, and turned up the electric light. The Countess did not seem frightened or even astonished at seeing him; she raised her eyebrows slightly, and her lips were once more parted in that curious, half-contemptuous smile.

The young man seized her hand, and with utmost calm drew her to the sofa, forcing her by gentle pressure to sit down near him.

"Monsieur—" she began.

"Hush!" he whispered commandingly; "there is no time now."

Truly there was none, for he heard Baron de Hermansthal's men lining the passage outside, and presently the door was thrown open, and the officer himself entered the room. The lady had turned very pale—she understood at once; the hand that still lay in Andre Zaika's was icy cold.

"By order of his Excellency the Transbalkanian Ambassador—" began Baron de Hermansthal.

"I am afraid, Monsieur," said Andre, who had risen very calmly and somewhat ironically, "that there is some mistake."

"Mistake?" said the chief of the police, who had been a little taken aback, on seeing a beautiful, richly-dressed woman and his Excellency's secretary the only occupants of the room. "I and my men saw a person surreptitiously entering this door, and I certainly—"

"You certainly were sent here by his Excellency," said Andre, "to watch for a spy whom the Ambassador suspects of breaking open his bureau. You do not, I presume, imagine, that the Countess Wladimir Rostopchine is here for that purpose."

"It is just as easy to suppose," said Baron de Hermansthal, highly nettled, and still doubting, "that the Countess Wladimir Rostopchine is in a gentleman's room at twelve o'clock at night for political purposes as for—"

"As for what, Monsieur?" said Andre idly. "Pray continue. Why should not the Countess Wladimir Rostopchine be at any hour she chooses, of the day or of the night, in her husband's rooms?"

"Her husband—you, M. Zaika?" said Baron Hermansthal, struggling to retain official sangfroid.

"My name, Monsieur, is Wladimir Rostopchine," said the young man proudly; "an outcast and an exile from my country, one condemned to death, but still with the right to his own privacy and the society of his own wife. Madame," he added, turning to the Countess, who had stood impassive at first, but on whose face now a look of pity spread as her eyes met those of Andre, "will you allow me to conduct you to your own rooms, while we leave Monsieur to effect the capture of the spy, who surely will not tarry if he means to come at all?"

She took his arm, and he led her away past Baron de Hermansthal and his men, who saluted them both as they went. At the door of her own room she stopped; evidently she meant, wished to say something; Andre took her hand, forcing her to look him straight in the eyes.

TO BUILD BIG MILLS.

Capitalists Will Construct the Largest Industry of Its Kind at Grand Falls, N. B.

The building of the pulp plant at Grand Falls, N. B., in which Senator Redfield Proctor of Vermont and other well-known Americans are interested, is now said to be assured. The plant is to be by far the largest in the world. It will cost $7,000,000. One-half the capital is to be furnished by Americans, and the other half by British capitalists.

The plans for this mill have been in preparation for two years. Its capacity will be 5,500 tons of white newspaper, 225 tons of ground wood pulp and 175 tons of sulphite pulp—requiring 525 cords of wood a day. The plant will furnish employment for 1,000 hands, and a small city is expected to grow up where now is a little village. The power afforded by the Grand Falls of the St. John is unlimited, and other industries will be established either at this spot or nearby.

Twelve miles above the falls mills for the manufacture of pulp and various products of hard and soft woods will be erected. In this enterprise several well known men are interested, among them Lord Strathcona, Frank Stetson of St. John, N. B., and the Hon. E. R. Burpee of Bangor. The power will be electricity, generated at Grand Falls, and it will be transmitted over 12 miles of wire.

Within three weeks land has been purchased for the sites of these mills, and it is expected that the work of construction will begin soon.

China was a civilized Power. From the time of Abraham China has had a settled form of constitutional government. She lifts her hoary head over the graveyards of ancient empires.

HER ANCIENT GLORY.

The Chinese had firearms in the reign of Edward I; engraving 1000 B.C.; made coins, 1100 B.C.; invented compass, 2634 B.C. The art of printing was practiced 500 years before Caxton was born. They made paper A.D. 150, and used gunpowder and arms about the commencement of the Christian era. Before Columbus discovered America the Chinese had a grand canal 1,200 miles long. The great wall of 1,500 miles was built just 220 years before Christ was born in Bethlehem.

We reach out after comparisons. A missionary writes: "When the arches of Babylon first spanned the Euphrates, when the towers of Nineveh first cast their shadows into the Tigris, while Solomon in all his glory was receiving the Queen of Sheba in Jerusalem, when Jonah threatened Nineveh with destruction, when Isaiah foretold the downfall of Babylon, when Daniel prayed and prophesied—through all these years the Chinese were engaged in their present pursuits of agriculture, commerce and literature." China was 700 years old when the Israelites crossed the Red Sea, and had existed 15 centuries when Isaiah prophesied of her future conversion. "Lo, there shall come from far . . . and these from the land of Sinim."

THE ENORMOUS POPULATION.

The missionaries have taxed ingenuity, imagination and rhetoric to convey any adequate idea of the vast and teeming millions of the Chinese. The fact that there are twice as many as there are in the four continents of Africa, North and South America

You Can Have Confidence

In the medicines that have stood the test of years in private practice and made famous the name of Dr. A. W. Chase.

Seldom if ever has a physician so thoroughly won the confidence of the people as has Dr. A. W. Chase, through the absolute reliability of his Recipe Book and the wonderful efficiency of his great prescriptions.

SALT RHEUM.

Mr. John Broderick, Newmarket, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled for thirty years with salt rheum. I used remedies, and was treated by physicians all that time, but all failed to cure me. The doctors said there was no cure for me. I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get relief, but all in vain. My son brought me a trial sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. I found great relief, and had the first night's rest in years. It stopped the itching immediately. One box cured me. Publish these facts to suffering humanity."

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Mr. A. T. P. Lalame, railway agent at Clarenceville, Que., writes:—"For twelve years I have been run down with nervous debility. I suffered much, and consulted doctors, and used medicines in vain. Some months ago I heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, used two boxes, and my health improved so rapidly that I ordered twelve more.

"I can say frankly that this treatment has no equal in the medical world. While using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I could feel my system being built up until now I am strong and healthy. I cannot recommend it too highly for weak, nervous people."

CONSTIPATION.

Mrs. W. H. Fisher, Preston, Ont., states:—"I can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation. I was troubled for about nine years, and have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and for remedies I heard of, but they failed to even give relief. Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I procured a box, and they have cured me of this long-standing complaint. I don't have to use them any more at all, which goes to show that the cure is complete and permanent."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES.

The following letter is being sent by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to women in the Province;

Dear Madam,—Your name, among others, has been sent to us by the officers of the Farmers' Institute in your district as one who might be interested in the formation of a Woman's Institute.

As you know, improved machinery, better live stock, more butter and cheese factories, and a change from constant cropping of grains to a diversification of crops, have made a vast difference in farm work and management. In fact, changed conditions of agriculture have practically revolutionized the work on the farm. Since the organization of Farmers' Institutes a great deal has been done towards helping the farmers solve problems which they had not the opportunity or means of solving for themselves. Since the Travelling Dairies passed through Ontario there has been a vast improvement in the quality of butter made in the country; since spraying has been generally adopted by our fruit men, the quantity of good fruit has vastly increased; since our live stock men have joined hands and formed Dominion Associations, a great impetus has been given to our stock interests, and the Dairymen's Associations of Eastern and Western Ontario, the Dairy School, and the men in the cheese factories and creameries, by their skillful labor have built up for us at home and abroad an enviable reputation for our milk products. The Ontario Agricultural College has been filled to overflowing during the past year with bright boys from the farms. They are preparing themselves well for their life work and are learning principles and methods that should enable them to secure a goodly share of the pleasures and profit of a country life. While all of these changes and improvements have been taking place on the farm and in the barns and stables very little progress has been made in that part of the homestead presided over by the wife and daughters. It is true that some houses are planted along modern lines. Many kitchens are supplied with splendid ranges and furnished with granite ware utensils of many shapes and sizes. Some places have cool, clean and comfortable dairies with running water and power supplied to turn the separator and the churn. A few have homes with bath-rooms and stationary wash-tubs and equipped throughout like the residences of their town and city friends.

As you know, however, there are many farm homes in this Province where none of these things exist. Even among the well-to-do, those who owe no man a cent and have comfortable bank accounts, are to be found badly planned and poorly equipped dwellings. Many of them do not know how to remedy matters. They have a horror of employing an architect, and equal sum be granted by the County Council or municipality in which the Institute is organized, or from the local Farmers' Institute, and on such further conditions as are imposed by the 'Act and Rules Governing Farmers' Institutes.'

After your Institute has been organized and elected officers a date will be set for the next meeting. Ladies will be invited from different parts of the riding, and when they have seen how an Institute is conducted they will form a branch at their own home. Branches will in this way spring up all over the county, authorized by the original organization but controlled by local officers. Some public meetings will be held. The Farmers' Institute will be especially benefited by such help as you can give them in their evening meetings. The most profits, however, will result from your meetings in your own homes where practical subjects are informally discussed and illustrated. For example, Mrs. A. invites the members to meet at her home. She has a reputation for making good butter, and has no desire to "hide her light under a bushel." At the meeting "butter," is the subject for discussion. Mrs. A. explains her process, and the members ask questions. Then the dairy is inspected and a profitable afternoon has been spent. Mrs. B. sells more eggs in winter than any of her neighbors, and she has always a few chickens to sell when they command the highest price. The next meeting is held at her home. Mrs. C. makes good bread. Miss D. has flowers in bloom all winter. Mrs. E. has been successful in hatching chickens with an incubator, etc., etc. An organization that will enable each lady in the neighborhood to get all such information in a practical and systematic form cannot fail to assist in the general upbuilding and improving of women's work on the farm. Some districts have already organized, and twelve others have signified their intention of doing so during the coming season.

We have now a number of estimable lady delegates on our staff, and their services may be secured at any time to assist any proposed Institute in organizing or in carrying out any practical schemes of the organization.

Trusting you will give this matter your personal attention, I am,

Yours very truly,

G. C. CREELMAN,
Superintendent.

MAYOR OF A FAMOUS TOWN.

Mafeking's Chief Magistrate is an Active and Versatile Man.

A name which has occasionally appeared in the brief messages from Mafeking is that of Mr. Frank Whiteley, teacher, and now the mayor of the town with which he has been so long connected. Mr. Whiteley comes of a Bradford manufacturing family, but was himself always of too venturesome a disposition to remain in England. He accordingly settled in South Africa as a hunter of big game and trader in ivory and skins, and has had about thirty years experi-

SOUTH AFRICAN WOMEN.

"The native women of South Africa give their infants four or five baths daily," says Mrs. Ellen G. enough. "They consider it necessary for the health and proper development of the child. After these baths they rub its little body with a sort of paint made by mixing a soft clay with oil. This completes its toilet and, after feeding, it is placed on its little mat by the fire to sleep."

"A mother does not leave her young child in her kraal when she goes out to gather wood, fetch water or work her farm, but carries it on her back in a sling, which, by the way, is made by the man of the household. One of the odd things about these Kaffir-Zulus, is that the men do the sewing. They are both tailors and dressmakers and fashion a bridal robe with as much skill as they make a man's apron or war shield. Of course you will understand that they use the same material, namely hide, for all of these purposes."

"But to go back to the babies, their principal food as soon as they have learned to drink from a gourd, is the whey which their mothers draw from the clabbered milk prepared in great quantities for the men of the household."

"You must not fancy that the women think of themselves in preparing the food for the family. A woman's taste is of too little importance. Indeed, I think such a thing is not known to exist. Food is prepared for the husband and his friends, according to his orders, and if there should be anything left over then the women and girls may eat it in another part of their little hut, if not, they must satisfy their hunger with whey, or fruits, for which the men are known to care very little. The meals for the men usually consist of several courses, of which boiled or broiled meat or fish is the first, then follow vegetables, of several varieties, fruits, the clabber of which I have spoken, and a sort of hasty pudding made of corn meal with coarse brown sugar sprinkled over it. Cooking is one of the many duties performed by the women and most of it is done in the same vessel, an iron pot, with a second pot of the same size fitted over it as a cover. In this clumsy vessel they manage to do very creditable cooking. Besides boiling their meats, vegetables and puddings, they manage to steam a loaf of bread."

"Their huts, of which each woman has one, is circular in shape and so low that she can only stand erect in the center. The Zulu woman keeps it remarkably clean when you consider that it is the only place in which she and her family must live, and at night the dogs, goats, calves and chickens creep in at the door and huddle in the corners assigned to them. This door is the sole opening to the house. It is about 2 1/2 feet high, so, of course, even the animals and children are compelled to crawl in and out."

"Like her sisters all over the world, she is fond of ornaments and not only delights in covering her body and limbs with beads, rings, bangles and all sorts of strange articles as charms,

They have a horror of employing an architect, and never stop to think that a talk with a carpenter and a consultation with the mistress of the home would go a long way towards improving present conditions. They have attended the Farmers' Institute each season and carried away and put into practice many good ideas received there but they feel helpless when called upon to assist in the dairy, the poultry yard, or the home.

What Farmers' Institutes have done for the farmers and the farms, Women's Institutes can do for the homes through the instrumentality of the wives and daughters. In Ontario we have been so busy cleaning up land and growing out of the log cabin period, that we have had little time to attend to the development of the beautiful about our homes. Now we are free from the long grind, wood-piles are relegated to the rear. Vines now clamber over the porches, lawns, are cut and trees are planted along the lanes. Flowers are grown in front instead of vegetables, and such homes become an expression of the culture of their inhabitants, and preach a sermon to the passer-by. From such homes the boys do not rush away and choose some other profession in life; the girls do not yearn for the attractions of the towns and cities.

The Government will give a grant of $10 each year to assist you in holding your meetings, and the Department of Agriculture will send you such literature as will be interesting to your members. I suggest that you speak to some of your lady friends and discuss the advisability of starting an Institute in affiliation with the Farmers' Institute now established in your riding.

The rules and regulations are very simple. The following are the most important:—

"The organization meeting may be called by the Superintendent of the Farmers' Institute by the head of a municipality, by the President and Secretary of the local Farmers' Institute, or by five ladies of the district."

"Each Women's Institute shall be in affiliation with the Farmers' Institute in the district."

"The object of Women's Institutes shall be the dissemination of knowledge relating to domestic economy, including household architecture, with special attention to home sanitation; a better understanding of the economic and hygienic value of foods, clothing and fuel, and a more scientific care and training of children with a view to raising the general standard of the health and morals of our people."

"Each Women's Institute shall receive a grant of $10 annually from the Department, on condition that an

He was with Khama in the early days, when the great chief was establishing the foundation of his firm rule as a representative of the British Government. After some years of hazardous life Mr. Whiteley founded at Mafeking, a large store, which with that of Messrs. Julius Weil, has been of immense service to the beleaguered garrison. It was not long before branches were opened at Palachwe, and later at Buluwayo, and Selukwe, the region of the Bonsor mines. Mr. Whiteley then took into partnership Mr. Fred Walker, whose sister he married, and who is the son of Alderman John Walker, a wealthy manufacturer of Dewsbury. Mr. Whiteley's house was fitted up as an English villa, but it has unfortunately suffered badly from the shelling. Fortunately. Mr. Whiteley and her children were in England during the progress of the siege.

BLOW TO THE SULTAN.

A Secret Religious Society Seeks to Strip Him of His Spiritual Authority.

Great uneasiness prevails among the entourage of the Sultan owing to the fact that the secret religious society, known as the Chems-ul-Islam, has of late been showing activity. This society, whose name means in Persian The Sun of Islam, has its seat in Egypt and is composed of ulemas not only of that country, but from all the Mussulman countries in the world.

It appears that under the predecessor of the present Sheikh-ul-Islam, a fetva was issued at Constantinople, about the necessity of separating the Caliphate from the Sultanate, that is to say, urging that the Sultan should no longer be Caliph but only a temporal chief, while the Caliphate should be transferred to Egypt.

Why this fetva was not carried out is uncertain, but it is in the possession of the Chems-ul-Islam Society, and the Palace are doing everything in their power to take it.

The separation of spiritual and temporal power is of the utmost importance for all Mussulman countries under the domination of European powers. It remains to be seen whether the separation would be to the advantage of Christian countries having Mussulman subjects, and whether the society is powerful enough to bring about such a change as that which it advocates.

The realization of the object it has in view would, however, be such a blow to the Sultan's power that one can readily conceive the anxiety which is felt at Yildiz.

Men of culture are the true apostles of equality.—Matthew Arnold.

the dogs, goats, calves and chickens creep in at the door and huddle in the corners assigned to them. This door is the sole opening to the house. It is about 2-1/2 feet high, so, of course, even the animals and children are compelled to crawl in and out.

"Like her sisters all over the world, she is fond of ornaments and not only delights in covering her body and limbs with beads, rings, bangles and all sorts of strange articles as charms, but takes great pride in the number of scars she can show. Mothers often have the arms and bosoms of their young daughters cut or burned for the purpose of making those beauty marks. I have seen the whole body covered with little gashes which the doctor was making and filling with what appeared to be a mixture of charcoal and ashes. You may be sure that girl sold for an extra price on account of great beauty, when she came to a marriageable age.

"Upon reaching the marriageable age both men and women shave their heads. The men leave a circle on the top and the woman a tuft of hair. This tuft of hair, which is on the crown of the head, is smeared with a mixture of grease and red ochre, and gathered into a sort of crest or top-knot. Their clothing, until they don their bridal costume, consists principally of beads, brass jewelry and numerous strings of charms. Native fathers are not in favor of clothing their daughters, as they consider it a useless expense. Legally, a woman has no rights, but her father has and unless her husband can show just grounds for complaint he can not rid himself of his wife. Their process by law is exceedingly tedious and that fact alone prevents many men from seeking a divorce.

"In the mission schools we find that the native girls show a decided aptitude for everything which we endeavor to teach them excepting truth and arithmetic. They fall far short in those two.

"The natives, and I mean practically all the tribes, are anxious for the English to come out victorious in the South African war. Of all the white men they prefer the Englishman.

HE WAS BOW-LEGGED.

The Hungarian Beauty Would Not Wed Him on This Account—He Had Pluck.

The Neues Wiener Journal of Vienna reports a curious occurrence from the town of Debreezin, in Hungary.

A young man there was paying court to the local beauty, who approved of him in every respect, with one serious exception. He was, although otherwise handsome, bow-legged. The lady declared that she would never marry a bow-legged man.

The enthusiastic lover hurried to the hospital and begged the doctors to break his legs and re-set them as straight limbs. The doctors at first declined to undertake so dangerous an operation, but finally allowed themselves to be persuaded by the entreaties of the plucky lover.

The operation was performed, an after weeks of suffering the young man left the hospital with perfectly straight legs. He had also gained an inch in height. There was now no obstacle to the union of the happy couple, whose wedding took place on Whit Sunday.

THE FRIENDS OF LAZARUS.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Discourses on the Rich and Poor.

A despatch from Washington says:—Rev. Dr. Talmage preached from the following text: "There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day; and there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores, and desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table; moreover the dogs came and licked his sores. And it came to pass that the beggar died, and was carried by angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried and in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted and thou art tormented."—Luke xvi. 19-25.

We stand in one of the finest private houses of olden times. Every room is luxurious. The floor, made of stones, gypsum, coal, and chalk, pounded together, is hard and beautiful. From the roof, surrounded by a balustrade, you take in all the beauty of the landscape. The porch is cool and refreshing, where sit the people who have come in to look at the building, and are waiting for the usher. In this place you hear the crystal plash of the fountains. The windows, reaching down to the floor, and adorned, are quiet places to lounge in, and we sit here listening to the stamp of the blanketed horses in the princely stables. Venison and partridge, delicate morsels of fatted calf, and honey, and figs, and dates, and pomegranates, and fish that only two hours ago glided in the lake, and bowls of sherbet from Egypt, make up the feast, accompanied with riddles, and jests that evoke roaring laughter, with occasional outbursts of music, on which harps thrum, and cymbals clap, and shepherd's pipe whistles. What a place to sit in!

The lord of the place has been receiving visitors to-day—as the doorkeeper introduced them. After a while there is a visitor who waits not for the porter to open the gate, or for the doorkeeper to introduce him. Who is it coming? Stop him there at the door! How dare he come in unheralded! He walks into the room, and the lord cries, with terror-struck face, "This is Death. Away with him!" There is a hard thump on the floor. Is it a pitcher which has fallen, or an ottoman which has upset? No. Dives has fallen.

DIVES IS DEAD!

The day of burial has arrived. He is carried down out of his splendid room, and through the porch into the cent funeral. You shall have grander obsequies than many a man who is carried out by a procession of governors and senators. The pall-bearers will be the angels that carried Lazarus into Abraham's bosom. The surveyors have been busy. Your eternal possessions have been already laid out by God's surveyors, and the stake that bounds the property on this side is driven into the top of your grave, and all beyond is yours. You can afford to wear poor clothes now, when for you in the upper wardrobes is folded up the royal purple. You can afford to have coarse food here, when your bread is to be made from the finest wheat of the eternal harvests. Cheer up! Weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning.

See, also, that a man may have every comfort and luxury here, and yet come to a wretched future. It is no sin to be rich. It is a sin not to be rich, if we can be honestly. I wish I had five hundred thousand dollars—I suppose I might as well make it a million—I see so much suffering and trial every day that I say again and again, I wish I had the money to relieve it. But alas for the man who has

NOTHING BUT MONEY.

Dives's house had a front door and a back door, and they both opened into eternity. Sixty seconds after Dives was gone, of what use his horses? he could not ride them; of what use his rich viands? he could not open his clenched teeth to eat them; of what use his fine linen shirts, when he could not wear them? The poorest man who stood along the road watching the funeral procession of Dives owned more of this world than the dead gourmandizer. The future world was all the darker because of the brightness of this. That wife of a drunken husband, if she does wrong, and loses her soul, will not find it so intolerable in hell as others, for she has been in hell ever since she was married, and is partially used to it. But this man of the text had everything once, now nothing. He had the best wine; now he cannot get water. He had like other affluent persons of the East, slaves to fan him when he was hot; now he is being consumed. He can afford no covering so good as the old patches that once fluttered about Lazarus as he walked in the wind. Who here will take Dives's fine house, and costly plate, and dazzling equipage, and kennel of blooded dogs, if his eternity must be thrown in with it?

See farther in the text the extreme suffering of the finally exiled. It has been a wonder to me why Universalists come to my Church, not merely temporarily, but that they hold sittings here, and come to all our services, and they are among my best friends. I hold in my hand a letter which makes it plain. The writ-ed-chair for a little while, and after he gets tired of roughing it, goes up to sit on cushions in glory. I will give you my idea of future suffering. I do not ask you to take my theory. I am not your pope; I am your pastor. I believe that there is an eternal hell, and I believe that there is literal fire.

Would not a common-sense man not prejudiced in the case take this to be fire? literal fire? an all-sweeping fire? an eternal fire? Lest you should dispute it, it tells what the fire is to keep in.

IT IS A FURNACE OF FIRE.

Lest you should say that it is a different kind of fire from that which we know about it, it says, "Its smoke ascendeth up for ever." Ah! your father and mother who adopted this literalism, were not such big fools as you make out. They studied their Bibles more than we do, and read less of the human criticisms that have slopped over on the pure page. All the engines of the nineteenth century have turned their hose towards putting out this fire. But still, it has burned on, and will burn for ever. It is a great stubborn, overwhelming fact that all the ingenuity of men and devils may war against, but cannot destroy. There is not so much evidence that there was a raging fire a few weeks ago in Chicago as that there is to-night a fire in hell; for the one information we have on human authority, the other by the mouths of evangelists and of prophets, and of the Lord Jesus the Son of God.

God deals with this world in two ways—by treaty and by cannonade; by treaty, in which, for the sake of Jesus Christ, and by the surrender of our hearts to him, He will be at peace with us, or by the opening of the smoking batteries of hell fire, by which He will hurl upon his enemies a horrible tempest; and he who will not be drawn by love shall be crushed under His wrath.

See also, from this subject, that heaven is not a myth or an abstraction, but a place of warm personal intercourse. Lazarus was carried up to the bosom of Abraham, one of the glorious old patriarchs. I suppose Abraham happened to meet him at the gate. And so, after death, we will be greeted into glory. Our departed friends will be at the door. They have been waiting for our coming. Count up their number if you can. Your father is there. Your mother is there. Your children are there. Your old neighbours are there. Many of the friends with whom you used to attend church, or do business, are there. They have been dead these five, ten, or twenty years, and have been waiting within the veil. There is no clock in heaven, because it is an everlasting day; yet they keep an account of the passing years, because they are all the time hearing from our world. The angels flying through heaven report how many times the earth has turned on its axis, and in that way the angels can keep a diary; and they say it is almost time now for father to come up, or for mother to come up. Some day they see a cohort leaving heaven, and they say, "Whither bound?" and the answer is, "To bring up a soul from earth;" and the question is asked, "What soul?" and a family circle in heaven find undoubtedly saves a good deal of work when building fences. Posts are required to sharpen the end of the post and with a huge beetle drive it deeply into the soil in spring as far as possible. The plan has also its disadvantages which are developed after a year or so, when frost lifts up the post, so that if the top of the post is heavy the post is soon in a bad condition. The failure of the driving down plan of setting comes from the fact that usually the post is only driven down to the top of the annual freezing in winter.

When it comes to the "hard" where frost has not penetrated, the post cannot be driven far. Its point turns up or the top of the post will be split by the severe frost. Yet unless the post is set deeper than the frost penetrates it is very difficult to stand erect until decay has its work.

In soil where there is a deep unfrozen posts may be set nearly to the top by driving, and remain so as the post lasts. The plan is to build a pile of earth around the post so as to turn the water away from it, or to bore a hole through the post somewhere near the bottom, drive a wooden peg the size of the hole through it and sticking out from her side so far as the post hole allows. On this peg set a three inch red block that can be nailed to the peg and the post. This is an additional obstruction for the post to lift, and if the water has turned away from the post, and set off through the underdrains, the post will remain firm so long as the post does not rot. When it does rot, it will most likely be at the surface where the changes of temperature and from wet to dry are frequent than they are deeper in the soil. In most post fences the posts above the ground is much longer than that below. It sometimes pays to keep up posts and board fences have been long in the ground, after putting some diluted carbolic acid on parts that have decayed to prevent further progress, set with the top part in the soil. The top is well dried it should be immersed in diluted carbolic acid and being placed in the ground. It then be much less likely to decay.

TO GET BEST FRUITS.

The fruit grower of to-day must have the ability to adapt himself to methods, new fruits and new markets. By use of cold storage and rapid transit the finest fruit any land can be found in any market, both in and out of season, for while the fruits of one season are first waking from winter's sleep, on the other the summer sun has done its work and ripened fruits are on their way to the markets. With the world a young bird from every egg they lay, and that fowls, when they revert more or less to their original wild state, also produce a large percentage of chickens from their eggs. For instance, when a hen steals away from her flock, and spends most of her time in a semi-wild state, making her nest and depositing her eggs in a hedgerow, wood or some other secluded spot, she hatches a strong chick for every egg. The poultry-keeper who wants to produce strong, healthy chickens, and to have a large proportion of eggs fertile, should, as far as possible, follow nature in the care and management of his breeding stock. There are many things that may happen to prevent eggs hatching well. The laying hens may be too fat, or may be too closely confined in runs that afford them no facilities for taking exercise. The method of feeding and foods used may not be conducive to the production of fertile eggs in abundance. Green food, water and grit may not be supplied as regularly as they should. Even though the poultry keeper understands his business thoroughly, he is liable to overlook some minor point or other in their management which leads to failure, unless he studies habits and wants of breeding stock birds, which differ closely in many ways from those of fowls kept merely for producing eggs for table use.

SELF-EDUCATION.

It is the Best Part of Every Person's Knowledge.

Sir Walter Scott, whose authority is indisputable, once remarked that the best part of a man's education is that which he gives himself, and the biographies of many of our greatest geniuses afford ample proof of the truth of the statement. Bacon declared that "studies teach not their own use, but that is a wisdom without them, and above them, won by observation," and again and again in the long roll of fame, of which as a nation we are justly proud, appear the names of those who, independent of tutors, universities and colleges, have given themselves the finest education, developed intellectual powers in the face of insuperable difficulties and attained positions of the highest eminence.

God has dowered rich and poor alike with gifts of mind and heart, so that distinction and culture, genius and talent, are not the prerogative of one class alone. The men who have achieved the greatest triumphs in science, art or literature have frequently been handicapped at the outset of their careers by poverty and congenial environment; but these hindrances, instead of deterring them or diminishing their enthusiasm, have served as wings on which they rose to higher attainments.

"Jesus Walking on the Sea." Matt. 14. 22-33. Golden Text. Matt. 14. 33.

PRACTICAL NOTES.

Verse 22. Straightway. The need for immediate action is given by John—the people wished to make Jesus king. Constrained, Kindly, yet with authority. A ship, "The boat," probably that which they habitually used. Unto the other side. Mark says "to Bethsaida;" John says "toward Capernaum." They were not to go straight across the lake, but were to skirt the shore, so that when Jesus followed he might be taken aboard. On their way to Capernaum they must pass Bethsaida Julias, where probably they expected to meet Jesus. He sent the multitudes away. Five words which describe an act that doubtless required tact and power to an extraordinary degree.

An one studies this verse and notes the disciples' hesitation, indicated by the word "constrained," one wonders whether Jesus was now experiencing the trial he afterward spoke of—"A man's foes shall be those of his own household." In the dispersion of the multitudes there was at once worldly and spiritual wisdom. "Divide your enemies, then scatter them." When Christians by the help of God keep their temptations far apart from each other they are on the way to victory. It is good often to "send the multitudes away"—the multitudes of business cares, of social joys, of worldly interests—and to "go apart to pray." Times of solitude are needed by every soul. There are deep experiences which no man can share. Prize the privilege of being alone with God.

23. He went up into a mountain, the mountain. Probably, as Dr. Whedon suggests, that at the extreme south-east margin of Bethsaida, which shuts down upon the lake. He went apart to pray, and thus, on the airy height overlooking the tossing sea, far from ceremonies and temples, made by men, he went into his closet and shut the door, and prayed to his Father, who sees in secret. When the evening was come, and the darkness and the silence deepened, he was there alone, apparently for hours—from sunset until early morning.

It would be idle to trouble ourselves with questions concerning the scope of our Lord's prayers. We only know that always in the great crises of his life he fell back upon heaven, and "refreshed his strength by draughts from the celestial springs." With same time to obey their Master's joy we meditate the grace of our High Priests, who, touched with the feeling of our infirmities, was tempted in all points as we are. There is nothing so necessary to life and health as prayer.

24. The ship was now in the midst of the sea. Near to the middle of the lake. John 6, 19 tells us that it was twenty-five or thirty furlongs, three miles or so, from the shore. The wind was contrary. The boat had been stricken by a sudden squall, such as Gennesaret is peculiarly liable to, and had been driven out of its permission; but observe, it is Bid me, not Bid us. Let me be the foremost one—in mournful unison with "Though all men forsake thee, yet will not I."

29. When Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus. This it was impossible to do without supernatural assistance.

The lesson for us is that spiritually, at least, we can do all things, Christ helping us. If Peter had been going to anyone else than to Jesus, he must have immediately sunk.

30. When he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid. When he looked to Jesus he walked; when he looked at the wind he sank. He cried, saying, Lord, save me. He had acted foolishly at every step, but now he is profoundly wise.

Call upon God in the day of trouble. It is comforting to remember that when we have got enough faith to walk the path that leads to Christ we may still have enough faith left to call to Christ for help. "If," writes Dr. Henry Clay Trumbull, "we could see the great conflict in the universe as it is in the sight of Him who sitteth in the heavens, we should have little fear of the issue, when, as one has suggested of this incident, on the one side is the Lord of glory, and on the other side—wind!"

31. Immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand. If Jesus's followers and representatives immediately stretched forth their hands to the needy that cry to them, the millennium would come with haste. Caught him. Took hold of him, and with the Lord's grasp Peter's doubt went to the winds. O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? What faith Peter had was real, but there was not enough of it. Reasons for his faith could be given, but what reason was there for his doubt?

"It was not Peter laying hold of Christ," says Dr. Hanna, "but it was Christ laying hold of Peter that bore Peter up." It is fortunate for us that Jesus did not say, "Wherefore didst thou come?" but "Wherefore didst thou doubt?"

33. They that were in the ship. Others than his disciples. Worshiped. Reverenced. Of a truth thou art the Son of God. A truth, which, once taken into the soul would inevitably germinate and multiply into the noblest theology, ethics, and spirituality.

FOUR GENERATIONS FOUGHT.

Son, Father, Grandfather and Great-Grandfather Captured With Gen. Cronje.

"I don't know of any better illustration of the way the Boer families have gone into the field," says one of the officers of the transport Milwaukee, "than the fact that we had four generations in a single group among the prisoners we took with Cronje to St. Helena.

"It was a remarkable party and consisted of great-grandfather, grandfather, father and son. By use of cold storage and rapid transit the finest fruit any land can be found in any market, both in and out of season, for while the fruits of one place are first waking from winter's sleep, on the other the sun has done its work and ripened fruits are on their way to distant markets. With the world's market, competition is keen, and the best fruits in the best condition will pay. Furthermore, it generally costs much less per ton to produce, first class fruit than the poorest, meanest specimens that are sold. Small fruit exhausts the soil more rapidly than large fruit. It is thus readily seen that the best varieties which produce the most fruit are the most economical manufacturers of food, and also that the product is the most salable.

A tree which needs a good deal of manuring to keep it in proper form for vigorous health should be removed by one that has a better capacity for growth, for every ton of manure taken unnecessarily from one tree represents at least as much loss of fruit. Many varieties of fruit have two or three superior qualities, but woefully lack in many others. The fruit grower of to-day is the manufacturer and should produce the latest and best improvement.

Of course there never can be a variety which will be best for all purposes, but it is perfectly possible to produce varieties which for their own special use can be relied upon to produce full crops of the best fruit without fail. All this can be done by careful selection and breeding.

FAVORS LATE SUPPERS.

A London doctor in an interview recently spoke strongly against the theory that late suppers are injurious. He declares, in fact, that many persons who remain thin and weakly, in spite of all precautions in regard to diet, etc., owe the fact largely to habitual abstemiousness at night. He says, very truly, that physiology teaches us that, in sleeping, as in waking, there is a perpetual waste going on in the tissues of the body, and it seems but logical that nourishment should be continuous as well. The digestion of the food taken at dinner time or in the early evening is finished, as a usual thing before or by bedtime; yet the activity of the processes of assimilation, etc., progresses for hours afterward. And when one retires with an empty stomach the result of this activity is sleeplessness and an undue wasting of the system.

APPLYING THE RULE.

Robbie was a very vindictive little fellow always watching his opportunity to "pay back" for all wrongs, real or imaginary. His mother had many an earnest talk with him about the golden rule, but he would always reply:

Yes, mamma, that is just what I am doing. You see when Ted strikes me then that is just what he would have that I should do unto him, so I ought to pay him back."

The boat had been stricken by a sudden squall, such as Gennesaret is peculiarly liable to, and had been driven out of its course far from the land. To keep it from swamping, and trying at the directions, the disciples seem to have steered their boat around and pushed against the wind toward the north-east; but in spite of their endeavors they were driven to the southwest.

"Having wind and tide against us is no sign that we are on the wrong track." Even when we do what the Lord tells to do, often the winds are contrary.

25. In the fourth watch of the night. Between three and six in the morning. Jesus went unto them. He had seen them through distance, darkness, and storm, as he always sees and sympathizes with his followers. In Mark we read that "he would have passed them," which is not strange, for often the best service our Lord can render us is lovingly to try our faith.

The declaration of a supernatural act is here distinctly and emphatically made. Take out of Christianity the supernatural element and it loses all its value to the soul. Its moral and prudential maxims may still minister to the comfort and elevation of secular life; but if the soul is to survive death, it needs to lean on the Everlasting Arms. The miracles teach many lessons, but this is the greatest lesson of all.

26. They were troubled, saying, It is a spirit. An apparition or ghost, and hence, in popular belief, a warning of death. Mark adds, "They considered not the miracle of the loaves, for their heart was hardened." They cried out for fear. Merely because they did not know their Saviour.

Babes sometimes shrink from love and confront more than they shrink from danger. Christians, sometimes shrink from blessing rather than from evil. Man knows wealth when he sees it, or ease, or health; but who can tell whether these things are in any given case really desirable or not? But the approach of Jesus is always to be desired; and we could never fear him if we only understood.

27. Jesus did not leave his disciples long in suspense, but straightway said, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid. It was the same voice which a few months before this had stilled a similar tempest on the same lake.

There is no exhortation so frequently repeated in Holy Scripture as "Fear not."

28. Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water. For "if it be" read "since it is." Peter does not here doubt the identity of Jesus; nevertheless throughout his early experiences one feels that his strong faith is not so much in God, or in Jesus as in himself. True, he says, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water." But he does not presume to go without

"It was a remarkable party and consisted of great-grandfather, grandfather, father and son. The boy was about 18; his father was 40 or thereabouts; the grandfather was a man of 60, and the old patriarch of the lot was nearly 80. They had all been under arms in Cronje's laager when it made its last stand, fighting in different trenches, and after the surrender they naturally drifted together. They excited my interest, and I talked with them on several occasions during the voyage. It seemed that they had been living on one of the great cattle ranches of the northern veldt, forming one big household with their women folk, and knew nothing of the war until the order came to turn out for active service. Of course they belonged to the local 'commando,' or militia department, for that section, but it was not a regularly disciplined organization, and they had never even drilled together. When the call came the father and son responded first and joined Cronje's army. Later on there was another requisition for troops, and the grandfather shouldered his rifle and hurried to the front. About the time Cronje started on his last retreat the old great-grandfather got uneasy and set out to see how 'his boys, as he called them, were getting along. He arrived just before the final stand, and, once inside the laager, he couldn't get out; so he took a gun from a dead man and went to fighting with the rest of the family.

"The four Boers struck me as good, honest, simple-minded men. They had no idea whatever of the causes of the war, the principles involved or the relative strength of the two sides. All they knew was that the 'rooineks' were trying to invade the republic and that Oom Paul had called on them to come out and fight. The whole crowd were fatalists of the deepest dye. They were prisoners of war on a strange ship, sailing away to a part of the world as unknown to them as the mountains of the moon, but they accepted the situation as stoically as so many Turks. I asked the grandfather how he thought it would end. 'God knows,' he replied, calmly. 'But don't you expect to get back to your home and family again?' I inquired, 'God knows' he repeated, and went on smoking his pipe."

JEWELLED PURSES.

The oblong square purses, which open with an ordinary clasp, are more popular now than the envelope-shaped purses, which have jeweled buttons. These purses are studded with jewels in gold ring settings, in some the jewels outlining the edges of the purses, and in others dotting the whole of the side. One, for instance, has the entire side covered with amethysts, cut diamond-shape, set at regular intervals. The purses with studs have one advantage—the studs can be removed and used for collar buttons, or to close the neck bands of blouses.

A SHAPE THAT PLEASURES

You are sure to be pleased with the shapes to be found in our stock of Hats. They have not only graceful shapes but pleasing wearing colors, some delicate shades for men who want a very attractive head covering.

Their quality makes them wear, the shades insure the pleasure of wearing them, and our prices the lowest.

Josiah Allen's Wife Goes a Visitin'

"Josiah Allen's Wife" has sharpened up her pen again, and when her patient, amiable, unobtrusive husband "goes a visitin'" for The Ladies' Home Journal, every one, knowing that Josiah's wife is "observant" and "critical," can anticipate that in laying bare the shortcomings and mistakes of those she visits she will have abundant opportunity for the exercise of her quaint humor and homely philosophy. In the course of her "visitin'" she finds many things to get right, and there is a definite purpose underlying all her sketches. "Josiah and I Go a Visitin'" is perhaps the best series that Mrs. Holly has ever written—superior even to her description of the Centennial, which established her reputation as a humorist-philosopher of the first order. The first sketch of this new series will be published in the August Journal.

An Enterprising Farmer.

Mr. C. D. Wagar, Enterprise, has purchased the property formerly owned by H. R. Purcell and has made many decided improvements. A noted feature is an addition to the barn, and a foundation, twelve feet in height, has been built up with cement, sand and stone, and presents a very finished appearance in comparison with the old style stone foundation. Upon the premises he has also built an implement shed with an office in one end, and intends to keep on hand a full line of Deering and Sylvester harvesting machinery. He has branched forth in the thoroughbred stock business and has some beautiful specimens of cattle on the premises, notable among which we would mention his thoroughbred bull Trout Creek Champion, thoroughbred cow Hazel and a very pretty calf registered Hazel's Beauty. Farmers wishing to improve their stock would do well to give Mr. Wagar a call.

SUPREME SUMMER VALUES!

The store news of this whole season was never more important than now—because of the exceptionally low prices we are making on merchandise of absolute goodness—just at a time when the goods are most needed. Much of the Big Store's success is due to giving extra values on the every-day things, and trade flourishes by the certain force of common merit. It's the giving of more for the money than you can get elsewhere. We are able to do it because we work on a low margin of profit, sell large quantities, keep a close and watchful eye on the market and buy carefully and fortunately, in this way making a material saving both to you and ourselves. All who are in the mood to make their pennies and dollars command the best bargains in fresh and worthy goods should not remain away from the Big Store this week, or any other week.

An Opportune Cotton Flyer!

Here's a White Cotton opportunity that no frugal housewife will care to ignore. The material is away better than the price would indicate. In order to allow as many as possible of our customers a share in this gold nugget of value we make the sale limit 20 yards to each purchaser.
